Paper-Wrapped 'Bomb' Sent to Gagliardi's Office

A paper-wrapped nuisance bomb was sent to the office of Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi Monday and was opened by his secretary.

A crude, home-made timing device was attached to a large flashbulb but there were no explosives.

The package was opened by Miss Edith M.

Scarff and the wires became detached. Nothing happened.

Although the minister looked upon the incident as a prank fellow cabinet ministers took the matter more seriously. One said that a sudden brilliant burst of light at close quarters could have caused a heart attack or collapse. RCMP are investigating.

RAIN-SOAKED HAT LONE DEATH CLUE

Elderly Woman Killed by Car

With a battered, rain-soaked black felt hat as their only clue, Oak Bay police late last night went from door to door along Beach Drive, seeking the identity of an elderly woman, killed by a car at 9:30 p.m. near Beach and Currie.

A passing motorist rushed the dying woman to Royal Jubilee Hospital where she was immediately pronounced dead.

SET OF KEYS

Only a set of keys was found in a pocket of her dark coat. Police found the crushed felt hat on the road way at the scene of the accident, along with a brown leather shoe.

The victim was struck down near the Oak Bay Boathouse about 9:30 p.m. by a car driven by Martin Chambers, 21, of 3811 Miramonte Drive.

NINE FEET

The impact with the right front fender of the car hurled the woman about nine feet onto the wet roadway.

"I didn't see the woman until she was near the fender," Chambers told police.

Together with C. E. Brown, 1945 Ash, who witnessed the fatal impact, Chambers carried the woman to Brown's car and she was rushed to hospital.

START ACROSS

"I saw a woman in black start across the road from our side of the street," Mrs. Brown said. "We saw the car coming. I started to say 'lan' he going to stop—she won't make it."

"Before I could get the words out to my husband, she was hit."

DOOR TO DOOR

Baffled police checked at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel and then went from door to door in the area, waking residents and asking them if they could identify the black felt hat.

Lack of a pocketbook or purse led police to believe the woman lived nearby.

The keys offered no clue to the woman's identity up to midnight.

TWO FATALITIES

"This is bad," one Oak Bay policeman said. "Seven years without a fatality and now two in two years." A man died Aug. 30, 1960 after being struck at Oak Bay Avenue and Elgin.

Iron Millions For Island

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Noranda Mines Ltd., one of Canada's largest mining corporations, announced yesterday it will spend some $5,000,000 on development and operation of its new iron ore property on the west coast of Vancouver Island, near Maggie Lake.

During the initial development period it is estimated Noranda will find work for up to 100 persons in various construction jobs, and for the seven-year period in which it is expected the mine will be in production there will be steady jobs for about 150 men.

BIG DEPOSITS

Maggie Lake is some 20 miles east of Ucluelet and south of the Port Alberni-Tofino Highway. Noranda bought the claims from B.C. prospectors about a year ago, and exploration work has indicated over 9,000,000 tons of magnetite iron ore.

Noranda reported yesterday that it has signed an agreement with Japanese smelters to ship 3,000,000 tons of 61 per cent iron concentrate over the

Crane Topples, Kills Six

BIGGEST YET

This is the largest contract yet made to ship Vancouver Island ore to Japan. First shipments will be made early next year.

Noranda proposes to use

open-pit methods at Maggie Lake and to install crushing, grinding and magnetic concentrating equipment at the property.

It will also build a seven-mile road to tidewater at Toquart Bay, an arm of Barclay Sound, where deep-sea docks and loading facilities will be constructed.

The crane exploded when it hit bottom spewing flaming fuel over the men.

The crane was 15 feet high and carried a 75-foot boom.

New Korea Menon Fear

BOMBAY (Reuters) — Indian defence minister Krishna Menon said Thursday withdrawal of the United Nations from the Congo would be a tragedy for the future of the whole world.

"If stern action is not taken, the Congo will become another Korea or worse," he said.

Of Russian actions at the United Nations, Mr. Green said:

"These birds do business in a different way to us. Their propaganda line may go one way and their real policy another way."

"I think the Russians want to cut down on the arms race just as much as the West."

Provincial Car Insurance Urged to Offset Gas Tax

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The provincial government should consider a form of cheap state automobile insurance to save motorists money and ease the blow of the planned three-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax, Scored party whip Bert Price (Vancouver-Burrard) told the legislature yesterday.

In a speech that filled the opposition with glee, Mr. Price also:

● Asked that the government set up a special petroleum board to investigate cost of producing a gallon of gasoline with a view to establishing a fair and reasonable profit and yet absorb the proposed gasoline tax increase in existing costs.

● Called for a capital gains tax on real estate.

● Called for a turnover tax on property.

● Urged the B.C. government to set up a program for licensing doctors, because although the doctors association claims doctors are overworked, doctors from other provinces are being hindered from coming to B.C. to set up practices.

● Called for a complete B.C. medical care program "on some basis by which nobody would be faced with a cost beyond which they can afford."

● Called upon B.C.'s commercial transport department to negotiate reciprocal licensing agreements with neighboring states and provinces, because "inter-provincial and international truckers will be forced out of the province, unless something is done," about high cost of trucking.

● Suggested that as an unemployment relief measure the federal government should form as the base for a large saucer-shaped lens or mirror to reflect the sun's rays to earth," Carter said.

"This is very theoretical now but will first be seen in a modified form for weather control."

Packer Crew Plucked From Seas

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seven men Thursday night were plucked from the frigid waters off northern Vancouver Island when the 76-foot fishparker White Swan was swamped in heavy seas and sank.

The men were rescued by a second fishparker, the St. Nicholas. Both vessels, owned by ABC Packing Co. of Vancouver, were headed here from Namu loaded with 80 tons of herring. Namu is 275 miles north of here.

John D Appeals To Africa, Asia

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said yesterday the principal support for the United Nations in the crisis brought on by Russia's attack on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld must come from the states of Africa and Asia.

He appealed to the "overwhelming majority of members" of the UN to rally behind the secretary-general at "this very critical time."

At the same time the prime minister called in the Commons for a strengthened mandate for Mr. Hammarskjöld in the Congo to allow the UN to protect civilians there, bring about a cease-fire in the civil war and reorganize the Congolese security forces.

RELISH AIMS

The Soviets have appeared to be following "selfish aims in Central Africa," said Mr. Diefenbaker, and in pursuit of those aims have tried to paralyze the UN operation in the Congo. A "supreme effort" was needed to prevent further deterioration of the situation.

WINNIPEG (CP) — External Affairs Minister Green said Thursday that Canada will not compromise "to please the Russians" over the present crisis in the United Nations.

NO QUALIFICATIONS

He said in an interview: "There are no qualifications to Canada's support of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld."

"The Russian leaders are just as stupid as we are. They make a lot of mistakes like the West does. And in this case I do not give them credit for thinking out this problem on a long-term basis."

DIFFERENT WAY

Of Russian actions at the United Nations, Mr. Green said:

Executive's Rise Depends on Wife

VANCOUVER (CP) — An oil company executive told a group of UBC students Thursday that wives are an asset in the business world.

"In the career of practically every successful man I know, his wife has been a tremendous help," said W. M. V. Ash, president of Shell Oil Co. of Canada Ltd.

"When we pick a man for a leading position, his wife is a very important person."

"She can help him tremendously and it's also quite conceivable that she can prevent him from getting the job."

Lotteries Reviewed

OTTAWA (CP) — The whole question of lotteries is under consideration by his department, Justice Minister Fulton said Thursday.

He was commenting on a survey by Montreal La Presse, which revealed overwhelming support for lotteries. (See Page 33).

Non-Whites Sold Down the River?

LONDON (Reuters) — A Northern Rhodesian Negro nationalist leader Thursday night accused Britain of selling the interests of non-whites in the Rhodesian federation down the river.

Harry Numbula, president of the Northern Rhodesian African National Congress, said the British had a two-faced attitude toward racial discrimination.

He also scored Canadian immigration policies that exclude non-whites and said 250,000 Indians in Canada have only two representatives in Parliament.

Red Heat Ray Could Crisp Foe

LONDON (UPI) — A British space scientist said yesterday the Russians have taken the first step toward orbiting giant reflectors capable of concentrating the sun's cosmic rays on an earthly target and burning man and matter to a crisp.

But L. J. Carter, secretary of the British Interplanetary Society, estimated that it would take at least 15 years before such a fearsome space weapon could be perfected.

"It's a certainty that the Russians are now thinking about using such a space platform as the base for a large saucer-shaped lens or mirror to reflect the sun's rays to earth," Carter said.

"This is very theoretical now but will first be seen in a modified form for weather control."

Carter said that although this military application still is some 15 years away, the idea is not new. It first was conceived by Nazi Germany during the Second World War but never advanced beyond the draft stage, he said.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

"OUR radio is breaking down again," the woman said. "Must be a tube gone—or something worse."

"Don't try to scare me with your bad news," the man said. "I'm in a happy mood."

"Yes," the woman continued. "Notice how the radio is fading? You can hardly hear it now. Must be because of that time we left it on all night."

"So what?" the man said. "It will have to go to the repair shop. That might be expensive."

"Don't try to make my flesh creep," the man said. "I won't fall for that today."

"Then there's your car. Smoke comes off the engine." The woman gave a small sardonic smile, to indicate that she meant to go on playing this game.

"Well, well," the man said. "You know what? You could tell me that smoke was coming out your ears, and it wouldn't bother me in the slightest."

"Look," said the woman suddenly, "there's smoke coming from under your chair. It must have been a spark from the fireplace. Set your chair on fire. Look, look!"

"Where? Oh, so that's it. A false alarm. I never was any good at lying, so I don't try."

"Ha ha ha! Oh yes, you try. But you're right. I can always tell."

"When did I?"

"Never mind."

"All right, be mysterious," the man said. "You're in good form tonight, honey. What's that on your leg, though? Another boil?"

"What do you mean, another? I haven't had a boil since last year. It's just a scratch, from carrying in a piece of wood. That's supposed to be your job."

"I did cut some wood and bring it in. Let's take a look at that scratch."

"No, I don't want it looked at."

"Why do you keep pulling your skirts down? You can't expect to wear short skirts and not show a bit of leg. Come to think of it, in spite of that boil, you're looking much better. You feel better, don't you?"

"No, I don't. I feel much worse."

"I knew you'd say that. You always hate to be told you're looking better. That's because you enjoy illness."

"Nonsense," said the woman. "I'm never allowed to be sick. But you..."

"Spare me the sermon," the man said. "I heard it last week."

"When are you going to give me the rest of the grocery money? I want to go to the store. I have a craving for some canned crab."

"I gave you the whole amount and five dollars extra. What did you say? A craving?"

"Yes, for crab."

"I know what a craving means. Out you go! Out into the storm."

"But there isn't any storm," the woman giggled.

"All right. At the first storm, out you go into it. You can stay that long, but no longer. Then, never darken my door."

"It's just ordinary hunger," the woman said.

"Listen. The radio's playing loudly now. Come on, dance with me."

"If you insist," the man said heavily. "But remember. Out into the storm you go."

"Dear Dr. Molner: After reading the letter about the youngster who couldn't be broken of taking the cap off the gasoline tank to sniff the stuff, I just have to tell you what happened in 1895."

"We had a gasoline stove. Mother bought five-gallon cans of gasoline, and I did this sniffing too."

"Mama got me a pair of red shoes I wanted so badly, and I promised never to do it again, and I did not."

"I am 71, mama is with us yet at 88. E.H."

And I still don't know why it is so intriguing to sniff gasoline! Probably the practice is not harmful if it isn't done to excess. However, this letter does indicate what a suitable reward can do.

We're all duly aware, these days of the fact that bribery isn't the way to bring up the children. At the same time, I do have a strong suspicion that we sometimes put too much emphasis on the term "bribery" and too little on the old-fashioned word "reward."

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a cure for a varicose ulcer? There was also a bad case of phlebitis in this leg several years ago but the condition cleared up without any treatment. Now the ankle and the foot swell badly at night."

Mrs. G.C.

Generally, the first rule of clearing up a varicose ulcer is to clear up the varicose veins which are hampering circulation. I leave a loophole in this advice because there can be special cases. For instance, among quite elderly patients it is sometimes better to try medications and other therapy rather than resort to surgery on the veins.

As to the phlebitis—perhaps it didn't clear up so completely as you believe. Phlebitis deserves continued treatment over an extended time, not only to let the affected area heal, but to relieve strain on other veins near it.

NOTE TO MRS. W.U.: Heart murmurs are quite common in children. They are called functional murmurs, meaning that the normal working of the heart causes a "murmur" but there is no underlying heart disease. These functional murmurs tend to disappear as the child reaches puberty. The murmurs of childhood that do reflect heart disease are different in character. In their location, intensity and other features.

There is no cause for alarm from a purely functional murmur.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is sodium benzoate and is it harmful? I've seen it marked on labels of some foods and juices I buy. I saw in a paper where someone had 'sodium poisoning.' Mrs. H.W."

Sodium benzoate is a preservative, and is not harmful. Only traces of it are used in foods. Anyway, as to 'sodium poisoning,' put it out of your mind. Common table salt is sodium chloride, baking soda is sodium bicarbonate, and so on. Sodium is a very common substance in nature.

There is no cause for alarm from a purely functional murmur.

MLA Advises Motorists:

Don't Pay—Go to Court

Motorists ticketed for traffic offences were advised yesterday by a Social Credit MLA to take their cases to court rather than to pay a fine without protest.

"The motorists on the road have been abused on matters of traffic convictions or attempted convictions," Social Credit whip Bert Price (S.C.—Vancouver-Burrard) told the legislature.

"Just what control does the attorney general exercise over the traffic police of this province?" he asked.

He said a motorist who gets a traffic ticket, pretty well has to pay a fine for economic reasons and pleads guilty because he can't afford to take a day off work and can't afford to hire a lawyer. Mr. Price said if motorists, in all cases, took their charge to court, it would act as the best deterrent to traffic policemen ticketing too many motorists.

Saanich Has New Policy

'Quality' Subdivisions Asked

Saanich has a new plan to encourage establishment of more high quality subdivisions in the municipality.

Reeve George Chatterton said since the present system of requiring subdividers to make a cash outlay covering certain improvements was introduced in 1958, there has only been one high quality subdivision.

NEW POLICY

He said the new policy approved by the public works committee this week means little in the way of concessions to the subdivider, but will make for easier administration all around.

Previous council policy has been for subdividers to build roads, curbs and sidewalks, with the council later installing sewers, water pipes and storm drains under local improvement petition.

With this system council had to destroy and repair part of the work done by subdividers to carry out its work.

"ABOVE GROUND"

With the new plan, the subdivider is responsible for installing sewer laterals, water pipes and storm drains and council does the "above ground" work later, still under local improvement petition.

High quality subdivisions include machine-laid hot mix road surfaces, curbs and gutters, storm drains, sewers, and street lighting.

Mr. Chatterton said people who buy lots in a high quality subdivision will save later high costs for local improvements by having all the necessary development work done at one time.

Stand-Off in Cuba

Outnumbered Rebels Mowing Down Militia

HAVANA (AP)—Militiamen are commanded by Maj. Dermidio Escalona. Thursday were reported suffering heavy casualties in bitter but undecisive fighting with rebel forces in Cuba's Escambray Mountains.

A source said 11 militiamen were killed in a clash of government forces and insurgent troops near the town of Trinidad and a hospital at Topes de Collantes was crammed with 300 wounded militiamen.

Neither side is asking or giving quarter in the battle where government forces are trying to oust outnumbered insurgents from their mountain positions in south-central Cuba, the source said.

He gave this report: U.S. RIFLES Fifty thousand or more well-equipped but inexperienced militiamen gathered from all parts of Cuba are trying to mop up about 1,000 rebels who usually operate in bands of eight to 10 men. The militia-

Sacred Asks Pared-Down Farm Board

A change in the provincial government's attitude toward the advisory board of the B.C. Farmers' Institutes was demanded in the legislature this week by Cyril Sheford (SC-Omineca). He suggested the board be cut to a more manageable size, from the existing 14, and that membership be for a three-year period, with two members elected each year. He said three members should be from the farmers' institutes and three from the federation of agriculture.

UN Commission Urges Conference of Leaders

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United Nations conciliation commission in the Congo yesterday recommended a "summit conference" of the country's political leaders to end factional warfare and agree on a unified government.

The 11-nation group's recommendation, called its "most encouraging report to date," was submitted to his Congo advisory committee by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld in a private meeting.

The conciliation commission includes representatives of all political views on the Congolese question. Its interim report to Hammarskjöld carried no explicit confirmation of its program from the rival factions of President Joseph Kasavubu, the late Patrice Lumumba and Moise Tshombe, leader of secessionist Katanga province. But the commission was believed to have consulted all factions during its six weeks in the Congo and its report gave rise to optimism for an over-all political agreement.

The commission, under the chairmanship of Jaja Wachuko of Nigeria, includes representatives of Ethiopia, Ghana, India, Liberia, Malaya, Morocco, Pakistan, Senegal, Sudan and Tunisia.

Ban All Outside Aid

This variegated group recommended, in view of the security council's current debate on Lumumba's death and Hammarskjöld's UN Congo policy, that all outside aid to any Congolese political faction should be stopped immediately.

"Deliberate violations of this injunction, open or secret, are largely responsible for the continuation of the deterioration of the situation and the drift of the country toward civil war and disintegration," the conciliation commission reported.

Some members of Hammarskjöld's advisory committee were reported to oppose putting the conciliation commission's report before the council in its present form. It was decided to withhold such presentation pending another expected report from the conciliation group deploring Lumumba's death.

Hammarskjöld was reported to favor immediate submission to the council of the conciliation group's recommendations, which included:

- Upholding of the fundamental law of the Congo on which Kasavubu's government is based.
- Broadening of the Kasavubu government to include other political leaders, a step to which Premier Joseph Ileo and other Leopoldville leaders agree.

End Military Operations

- Immediate cessation of all military operations.
- Isolation of the Congolese national army from politics.

- Convening of a "summit conference" of the country's political leaders, outside the Congo if necessary.

- Release of all political prisoners under a general amnesty.

- Reconvening of parliament.

- Enforcement of UN resolutions on the Congo.

Reports indicated Kasavubu left Leopoldville for Brazzaville to meet Tshombe and Albert Kalonji of Kasai.

Ambassador Louis Rakotomalala of Madagascar said any outside interference with these talks would be "awkward."

Ambassador Guiseppe Diop of Senegal suggested that any decision should be put off until the General Assembly reconvenes on March 7, to give time for the Brazzaville talks to succeed.

Guinea and Mali Support Russian Assault on Dag

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Two African countries, Guinea and Mali, yesterday renewed the assault of Dag Hammarskjöld, backing up Russia's charges that the UN secretary-general's policies in the Congo led to the slaying of deposed premier Patrice Lumumba.

Guinea's Diallo Telli read a telegram from his president, Sekou Toure, stating Hammarskjöld had betrayed the trust placed in him in the Congo and should resign.

Mali's Abdoulaye Maiga noted that he had said in an earlier speech his country would hold Hammarskjöld responsible for the safety of Lumumba.

Louis Rakotomalala of the Malagasy Republic (Madagascar), one of the newly-independent African countries remaining in the French community, said there could be no question of recognizing any Congolese government except the one at Leopoldville.

The African delegates spoke as the Security Council resumed its post-mortem on the death of Lumumba. Russia is attempting to link Hammarskjöld with the slaying.

The Soviet Vendetta

THE Soviet Union is gunning for UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. The process began last year during Mr. Khrushchev's attendance at the General Assembly. Now the secretary-general is being made the scapegoat of events in the Congo. The Soviets have demanded his resignation or dismissal.

In fact Mr. Hammarskjöld has done wonders in keeping the tortuous Congolese situation even at its present level. He was asked to do the impossible, and mainly through the obstruction of the Soviet Union. That the UN force there has acted in effect merely as observers and has lacked the authority to intervene forcibly is not his fault. The UN did not give him either the scope or the means to do otherwise.

Russia could doubtless succeed in driving Mr. Hammarskjöld from his post, as it did his predecessor Mr. Trygve Lie. It can make his position untenable, and Mr. Hammarskjöld realizes this. If, as it threatens to do, the Soviet Union ignores the secretary and refuses to do business with it, successful operation of his office will not be possible.

If pushed to the limit therefore the secretary-general may have to bow before Soviet pressures. He is too dedicated a servant of the UN—the best the world body has had since its inception—to put personal considerations ahead of the best interests of his office. And the secretary cannot function properly if by-passed by one of the main blocs of the UN.

Meanwhile Mr. Hammarskjöld has rejected Soviet demands but pointed out that his fate rests in the hands of the lesser, uncommitted member states. The Western members are thoroughly on the secretary-general's side but the balance of voting power now rests in the General Assembly with the so-called neutral members. If these are attracted by Soviet wiles to sustain Russian demands for Mr. Hammarskjöld's resignation and a reorganization of the secretariat on a triumvirate basis—which the secretary-general declares would paralyze the executive function—then the latter would have to give way.

It would seem unlikely that most of the uncommitted members will back the Soviet stand. Many of them are newly independent and proud of their admittance to the UN. Nor should they fail to sense the Soviet strategy and appreciate that a UN harnessed to the Communist bloc would be dangerously detrimental to their interests.

The moment is crucial nevertheless for the UN. On the future of Mr. Hammarskjöld may well hang the future of the world body itself.

Check First . . .

VICTIMS of fraudulent salesmen now operating on the door-to-door circuit in increasing numbers in Greater Victoria will hardly be heartened by Chamber of Commerce president Aubrey Kent's view that they have only themselves to blame if they are "kyped".

However, as harsh as his words may be they are undeniably true.

The situation is not confined to Victoria, neither is it a particularly new one—over the years thousands of Canadians the length and breadth of the Dominion have been defrauded of millions of dollars by smooth-talking personable young men selling so-called bargains in everything from magazine subscriptions to imported sewing machines.

The rub is, of course, that the bargains never really exist and the innocent housewife, out to save a little money, wakes up to find that she has paid or is committed to pay a price for an article far in excess of the amount she could purchase it from a legitimate and established merchant.

This is not to say that all house-to-house salesmen are dishonest or out to bilk the public. There are a number of old and tried commercial houses which have always conducted their business in this manner—and, unfortunately, it is their fine reputation that the gyp-artists exploit.

The only course to follow if the householder is to protect himself is to look with suspicion on all such approaches and, more important still, before signing a contract for any purchase from an unknown salesman check with the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber office will pass on to enquirers any information it possesses as to the status and legitimacy of the company represented by the salesman at the door.

Such a precaution costs nothing and is only as far away as the telephone.

Castro's Old-Hat Tactics

WITH a fine flourish that would have done credit to an Emperor Jones, Premier Fidel Castro has dictated the conditions he wants observed by the American government before he can consider any move toward the re-establishment of friendly relations between Cuba and the United States.

To the disinterested observer his demands seem reasonable: that the United States halt its support of enemies of the Cuban government; that Washington guarantee no further interference in Cuban internal affairs, and that Cuba's close ties to Communist nations be accepted.

However, even the most naive student of foreign affairs cannot help but see that the very acceptance of Dr. Castro's "peace terms" would carry with it the tacit admission of past guilt and intention of future villainy by the United States government.

Dr. Castro has, in a deliberate but over-elaborate move carefully calculated to please his Communist associates and calm growing Latin American suspicions as to his motives, set down conditions as impossible to meet as his accusations against the United States are to prove.

Much may be said about Dr. Castro's lack of ability to govern, but there can be no denying that he has learned well and quickly the tactics of international politics as practiced by his Moscow comrades.

Unfortunately for him the Communist game has been played too often. It is no longer new and its course can be predicted simply and accurately: today he can say that it was he who made the first overtures to lessening tensions between the two countries—tomorrow he will say that his move for peace was rejected and call upon the world as his witness of American perfidy and insincerity.

Though the Western allies will not be taken in by such old-hat tactics, there is a real danger that Cuba's Latin American neighbors may be duped. If Dr. Castro achieves even this much he will have contributed substantially to the cause of international Communism.

Interpreting the News

West Indies Federation

By PHIL NEWSON, UPI Foreign News Analyst

KINGSTON, Jamaica—An independent West Indies Federation is on the verge of taking its place among the free nations of the Western Hemisphere.

It will embrace a mixed population of a little more than 3,000,000 people and include 10 principal islands spreading across 1,000 miles of the Caribbean.

Independence for these lush green islands has been years in the making and in general the transition from British colonial status to control of their own foreign policy, currency and treaties should be painless.

Some, such as Barbados, Jamaica and Trinidad, long have enjoyed internal self rule.

Structurally, it will be a weak federal government with many key powers remaining with the individual island.

Thus, Jamaica, with approximately half of the federation's 3,000,000 population will retain most of its own revenues and will be free to pursue the swift pace of its industrialization, agricultural and tourism programs.

Similarly, Trinidad will retain the bulk of its oil revenues and Barbados the income from its sugar.

But, with independence, all the islands will face a common problem. This is one of exploding population, which in most of the islands means an average of close to 400 persons per square mile and in Barbados exceeds 1,300.

Emigration of some 855,000 West Indians to Great Britain since the Second World War eased the problem only temporarily.

Here in Jamaica, the difficulty is being met by an industrialization program under direction of the government-established Jamaica Industrial Development Corporation and by an agricultural program to teach farmers modern agricultural methods.

Kingston, Jamaica's capital, is a boom town today, with thousands of new housing units going up and new manufacturing firms coming in in a steady stream under incentive laws which include everything from tax benefits to government help in building and planning their factory sites.

Up to the present, government efforts have been directed primarily toward establishment of light industry such as the needle trades.

Now manufacture of chinaware and glass is being encouraged, along with pharmaceuticals and typewriter and radio assemblies. Already contracted for is an oil refinery and members of the industrial board are considering an automobile assembly plant.

Thinking Aloud At Cross Purposes

... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

THE other day a friend remarked that no one whistled nowadays; it was a dying art. Indeed that in fact it was dead.

It is perhaps reassuring to have it called an art.

True enough once in the long ago a music hall artist made his living in Piccadilly by mouth music, but the critics of his time dismissed him simply as a "chin performer."

In our own day, or not so long ago anyway, Mr. Bing Crosby was wont on occasion to enliven his songs with a whistled verse, and only recently I listened to a rock 'n' roll record wherein this species of singer actually whistled for a change.

It was refreshing too. By and large, however, whistling, if not exactly dead, is an art whose cultivation is sadly neglected. I doubt that even the hayroom echoes in this respect as once it did.

One reason may be that whistling is rather frowned on as unartistic and since we all aim to out-Jones the Joneses such a plebeian course as pursuing the lips to imitate the birds has become uncool. I think I read somewhere also that if a sailor whistles aboard a U.S. warship he is un-American; and I am told that if a seaman does ditto in a sailing ship he is inviting a storm.

Only when the storm strikes may he whistle, for then it is an invocation for a wind.

It is an invocation of sorts, I suppose, when ill-favored youths whistle after a maiden. A certain song suggests that if the lad whistles the lass will come running, but I doubt this kind of procedure is fashionable in the best circles. Probably a lady has no objection when her appearance causes a gentleman to whistle to himself in admiration, but the latter must leave the mouth music there, in his mouth.

And he is no gentleman if he whistles at the lady, or so the book of etiquette reminds us.

Some of this may derive from the cold sad truth that few men are good whistlers anyway. They are unmusical chin performers. There is not a whistling virtuoso among a thousand of them. Almost any one of them could, at a pinch, put two fingers in the mouth and let go a piercing note; or at least nearly every one of them has tried to attain perfection of this feat when young and innocent of social connotations.

Grown up, however, the enormity of this offence in public has attired a true development of the art of chin music. And this is a pity. Next to singing a whistle should be the most natural of musical sounds. Could he really emulate the nightingale a gentleman might hope to become a matinee idol or the special guest at a pink tea.

It would seem therefore that in not pursuing to its highest artistic level the art of chin music, as it was ancient, called the male sex has missed one of the rare virtues.

But if in truth whistling is dying out, or unaccountably lying dormant, there may be another reason. Man is not so blithe as once he was. He hasn't so much to whistle about.

Antisocial or not, you see, to whistle was to indicate a galaxy of spirit that simply had to find innocent expression. And incidentally when a man was whistling, whether like the nightingale or just like the night, period, this was a good time to approach him for a favor. He was obviously of cheerful disposition.

How many of us whistle today, in the apathetic era?

We may whistle of course to keep up our courage, a muted note that doesn't always pay a dividend. In effect we have then whistled for something we didn't get. But that is not the kind of whistle we are discussing, which is the free, unrestrained whistle of gladness and wellbeing.

But even the messenger boys don't whistle as once they did, as doubtless you have noticed.

Either we are now too socially conscious or too gloomy. Perhaps both.

Cultural Exchanges With Russia

By ROBERT STEPHENS, from London

CULTURAL exchanges between Soviet Russia and the West are one aspect of East-West relations which has remained relatively unaffected by the fluctuations between cold war and co-existence during the past two years.

Despite the Berlin crisis, the U.S., the Congo and other political quarrels, increasing numbers of scientists, actors, ballet dancers, technicians and other visitors have been coming and going between the Soviet Union and Western countries. Only in the jamming of Western broadcasts have the changes in political climate been strongly felt.

Yet this beneficial expansion of contacts is not without hazards and misunderstandings. Some of the difficulties have been illustrated recently in the conclusion of the new Anglo-Soviet agreement on cultural relations and a controversy which followed it.

When the limited nature of the agreement was criticized in the London Observer the Soviet minister for cultural relations, Mr. G. Zhukov, himself wrote a long letter to the paper in reply. The letter was cleverly and suavely phrased. It made no direct accusations, but it implied that it was Britain and not the Soviet Union which was dragging her feet in cultural relations.

The truth of the matter is, of course, that the whole business of negotiating cultural agreements between governments is artificial, in the sense that the Western side considers them unnecessary. The fact is that, as far as Britain is concerned, the only artificial barriers to free cultural exchanges to be negotiated away are on the Soviet side.

But a good deal of misunderstanding arises from the different political and economic systems in each country. The Soviet Union sees cultural relations as essentially an officially controlled affair, to be either encouraged or discouraged according to political circumstances or social objectives. For Britain they are a matter of free choice and the chief official contribution should be the removal of obstacles rather than positive participation.

For example, in his letter to the Observer Mr. Zhukov said that the Soviet Union buys from Britain five to six times as many periodicals as Britain buys from her. To this the British would answer that in the first place the Soviet population is four times that of Britain. But secondly, and more important, the real question is not one of quantity but freedom of access.

Anyone in Britain is free to order and obtain any Russian book or newspaper he wishes through ordinary commercial channels. But the ordinary Russian cannot order any British book or newspaper he likes from a Soviet bookshop or newsagent. No British newspaper except the Communist Daily Worker and few British books are openly on sale in the Soviet Union.

Mr. Zhukov also gave figures to show that far more British films and translations of English books were shown and published in Russia than was the case with Soviet films and translations of Soviet books in Britain. This is not denied in London but the official answer is that there are no limitations on the British side except those of commercial demand. British publishers translate what Soviet books they think are worth translating and which they think will sell. The same measure by the market applies to Soviet films. Most foreign language films, not only Soviet ones, have a limited distribution in Britain.

The Soviet minister also claimed that "the British Board of Trade has in general prohibited the import of Soviet fiction in English, with the exception of the Russian classics." The official explanation in London is that the import of fiction in English from all Soviet bloc countries is under licence. But the reason is not, as might be implied by Mr. Zhukov, a sinister political restriction. It is a commercial precaution dictated by the absence of copyright agreements in Soviet bloc countries. It is intended to protect British authors and publishers against pirated editions. But it is claimed in London that practical difficulties rarely arise over the granting of import licences for Soviet fiction in English.

Perhaps the most glaring example of cross-purposes, of either deliberate confusion or misunderstanding, in this controversy concerns broadcasting. One of the aims of the British negotiators of the cultural agreement has been to persuade the Russians to end the jamming of British broadcasts. No broadcasts to Britain from the Soviet Union or any other country have ever been jammed.

The facts about jamming were set out in a letter to The Observer, replying to Mr. Zhukov, by the director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, Mr. Hugh Carleton Greene.

Mr. Greene pointed out that all BBC Russian broadcasts were jammed by the Soviet Union from 1949 to 1956. The jamming stopped when Mr. Khrushchev and Mr. Bulganin visited Britain in 1956 but was resumed six months later at the time of the Hungarian rising.

As a result of Anglo-Soviet cultural talks in 1959, Soviet jamming stopped again in February of last year but was resumed again after the U-2 incident and the collapse of the Paris summit conference. This jamming has continued on a selective basis, affecting anything from 23 per cent to 70 per cent of BBC transmissions in any week.

In his letter, Mr. Zhukov quoted a "prominent Englishman" who refused to include the words "and contributing to the consolidation of peace and international understanding and friendship" in a proposed provision of the Anglo-Soviet cultural agreement admitting the value of broadcasting material reflecting the public opinion of the broadcasting side.

This, Mr. Zhukov implied, showed that the British were against international understanding and in favor of cold war propaganda.

The British official interpretation of this episode is rather different. It says that the British negotiators refused to include Mr. Zhukov's proposed form of words in the cultural agreement because this would have meant putting the British Government on record as regarding Soviet broadcasts to Britain as contributing to peace and friendship when in many cases these broadcasts do precisely the opposite. But there is nothing to prevent anyone in Britain from listening to these broadcasts and forming their own judgment about them.

The only point at issue in the negotiations was whether Russians should enjoy the same right to listen to British broadcasts and the same right to switch them off if they do not like them.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

"WHAT I could wish for most of my patients," said a doctor of my acquaintance, "is enthusiasm. Some small enthusiasm for some little, trivial thing. To say a hobby is not quite what I mean. A hobby involves projects, outlay, physical activity. One of the characteristics of a good many of my patients is a want of enthusiasm for anything in life, even for life itself. They appear weary. They lack the little glint or shine that is essential to health."

"The most surprising results," said the doctor, "I have got from recommending book collecting to my patients. Old book collecting. At first it sounds a little absurd. But if you could see some of them who a year ago hadn't the slightest enthusiasm for anything and now have got 40 volumes on honey, or 30 books on the War of 1812, or $200 worth of pamphlets they have bought all over creation on honked rugs! A man with plenty of money to spend but not a clue as to how to spend it, and ill with nothing but disinterest in life, has gone overboard buying books on the history of the boot and shoe industry in America. He goes on trips all over the continent, St. Louis, New York, San Francisco, and in his car stopping at towns along the highways all over the map, buying anything that refers to boots or shoes especially in pioneer or early times."

"The beauty of old book collecting is this; you can think of a subject, any old subject, and start collecting. And before you know it you have gone mad. Mad with enthusiasm. And new health."

Letters to the Editor

Victoria's Beauty

Are we as a community really interested in visitors to our island?

While lunching in town recently I met and talked to a very interested young couple on their first visit to our beautiful city. We talked of the churches and beauties around the city. We mapped out a drive for them from the Empress to Beacon Hill to Oak Bay golf course, on through the Uplands, downhill to Cadboro Bay, through Queenswood, Cordova Bay, to the main highway to the ferry at Sidney.

A day or two later while walking my dog in Queenswood a car pulled to the side of the road; it was the same young couple, very enthusiastic over the drive around Beach Drive, telling of their visits, the seagulls on the golf links and their delightful stay. They expressed the hope all these things will still be here on their next visit from their home in Los Angeles.

The stores are not our only attractions. We have all the beauties of nature.

As Little Children,

The fans of pacifism and disarmament should critically observe such articles as your editorial on Viscount Montgomery and the news item headed "Can't Hide Heads in the Sand, Harkness Tells Pacifists."

The outstanding points are that our leaders of democracy in the United Nations are like little children opposed to smooth professional confidence men. The United States has practically nobody versed in the languages or habits of foreign peoples as the British had.

We have lost and are losing the cold war. Communism is slowly but surely taking over world mastery like a great octopus. Their only doubt and check is their uncertainty that in a nuclear war they might come out second best. Slowly but surely communism will take over our religion, liberties and freedom of speech.

Hate Campaign

I was deeply disturbed on reading the full-page advertisement on Moral Re-Armament with its preposterous claims of influencing millions against Communism, to see how far from the path they have strayed since the days when the Oxford Group, as it was called 30 years ago, gave some of us a deeper insight into the Christian life. Claiming "absolute love," it is tragic to see it turned into a self-righteous and hate campaign. When millions go to bed hungry every night is it "Christian" to spend millions in print, and travel to and upkeep of their fabulous Baniff-type hotels at Mickimac in U.S.A. and Caux in Switzerland.

We are commanded to "bear one another's burdens and fulfil the law of Christ." In this age when caring matters most in our relations with Afro-Asian countries how can we possibly win against Communism with our selfish materialism? Every informed person knows that in some spheres Russia is setting a better example than affluent North America with our false values in luxury cars, etc., millions spent on pleasure so-called, our lack of employment for millions, our anti-racism, etc.

This is a good time for MRA and all of us to read again the 25th chapter of St. Matthew, particularly verses 31 to 46 regarding the Day of Judgment.

"Depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire—for I was shunned and ye gave me no meat. When saw we these shunned? Verily I say unto you inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these ye did it not to me."

Brainwashed by CBC

May I express my indignation at the way in which the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is being handed over to the U.S.A.? When the U.S. election was over many like myself said "Thank God that's over, maybe we can now hear something about Canada." But we badly fooled ourselves.

We do not get full coverage of Canadian news on TV at the best of times but when our best 15-minute coverage at 4:15 p.m. is entirely wiped out in favor of Mr. Kennedy at a news conference, it is too much for loyal Canadian citizens to tolerate.

Much has been said in the U.S. about brainwashing of U.S. soldiers by their Korean or Chinese captors, but there seems to be no outcry from us whilst we are being so thoroughly brainwashed by the CBC in favor of the U.S. It seems to me that our loyalty to Canada is so weak that its one-time rich true blue color has come out in the wash.

This, sir, is not an attack on the American people; it is purely resentment at the too frequent action of the CBC.

Debits and Credits

It has been refreshing to note the resurgence of an enlightened, dispassionate and constructive editorial policy which reaffirms the editorial column as the right place for the expression of a newspaper's opinions and policies. Factual news coverage, a cardinal principle of a well-ordered newspaper, is also at a new high standard and responsible columnists treat their subjects objectively and develop their ideas with tact and understanding.

On the debit side of the ledger there is a disturbing liability listed under the caption "Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook." The Fourth Estate enjoys a freedom assured by the state and it is incumbent upon its members to extend the same degree of protection to the individual in the community who may suffer persecution at the hands of a misguided reporter whose egotism assumes infallibility to be one of his personal attributes.

Too Much 'Gunsmoke'

The public is getting very tired of the quarrelling, accusations, charges, counter-charges, etc. from members at the Legislature.

This "Gunsmoke atmosphere" may be interesting to read about or listen to but does little to further the important business of this province.

The people expect, and should receive, much better treatment from both government and opposition members.

Behind the Times

The photo in the Colonist of a group of grinning humans around a dead cougar made me mad.

If our game department, whom I suppose control these matters, are still of the opinion that they are a hundred years behind the times. This myth was exploded a long time ago.

The perennial open season on bears and cougars should be closed forthwith.

The provincial legislature put through laws a couple of years ago protecting all hawks, eagles, etc., and it is now time that this was made inclusive of all our wild life.

LIVINGSTON MERCHANT

New Envoy

'Neutral' Canada Dismissed

WASHINGTON (CP)—Livingston T. Merchant, nominated for a U.S. ambassador to Canada, said Thursday there is some talk of neutralism in Canada but he does not think it is widespread or on a rising tide.

Merchant, questioned by the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee, drew the senators' attention to an "excellent" speech by Canadian Defence Minister Douglas Harkness who last week criticized Canadians who advocate neutralism and unilateral disarmament.

The career diplomat, who goes to Ottawa shortly, was replying to Senator J. William Fulbright, committee chairman. Fulbright brought up such issues as Canadian trade with Cuba and a recent Canadian move to boost the withholding tax on dividends going abroad to 15 per cent from five.

Merchant said that he would describe the Canadian tax move as a withdrawal of a tax preference "rather than a discriminatory act."

The 57-year-old former undersecretary of state observed that Canadians are extremely worried about the size of American investments in Canada and the extent of foreign control over Canadian industry.

He observed also that the higher Canadian tax will reduce some dividends coming back to the United States and this reduction in the flow of American dollars will "affect our balance of payments."

An American Looks at Canada

Does Nation Feel Inferior?

By MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP)—Many Canadians are looking to the new administration in Washington to remove some of the irritants aggravating U.S.-Canadian relations.

President Kennedy has made a good impression here. There is hope that next Monday's talks between Kennedy and Prime Minister Diefenbaker will be fruitful.

One of the first to back such talks was Lester Pearson, Liberal party leader who has been a leading critic of the recent trend of Canadian-American relations.

CREATIVE BASIS

Pearson, urging Diefenbaker to invite Kennedy to make Canada the first country he visits, said:

"There is a new, energetic, courageous, young administration in Washington. A strong and creative basis for positive co-operation should be established with it."

Canadians acknowledge that much of the discontent in their country is due simply to the strong economic and cultural pressure coming from the U.S. side of the 3,000-mile border. It is a case of a country of 18,000,000 people being in the shadow of a giant neighbor of 180,000,000.

HIGHER PRICES

Some Americans who have studied the Canadian mind over the years feel many Canadians are victims of an inferiority complex, arising in part from economics. Canadian pay for comparable work is generally lower than in the United States but many things that today's home dwellers want, such as refrigerators and TV sets, often cost more here.

One of the most frequently heard complaints here is that Americans know so little about Canada and that they hardly seem aware of Canada's problems.

TWO SUGGESTIONS

Pearson has offered two suggestions on how to make the United States and Canada better neighbors:

"The U.S.A. must show a greater awareness of the importance of the problems and of the possibilities of our separate national position; or our resolve not to mistake co-operation in defence, in foreign policy or anything else, for domination; or partnership for absorption.

"We, in turn, must show an equal understanding of the world responsibilities of the United States, responsibilities accepted out of duty, not for imperial ambitions."

GOOD CITIZENS

Robert M. Fowler, president of the Canadian pulp and paper association, suggests that U.S. companies coming to Canada to establish subsidiaries should take into account the different conditions and different aspirations that exist.

"These subsidiaries," he said, "must become good and active corporate citizens of Canada."

LAUDABLE PATIENCE

There is no doubt that a great many Canadians sincerely want to be friends with the United States. Despite the rise of nationalism, there are millions who still praise and admire the United States.

A leading Canadian magazine, Maclean's, said in a recent editorial:

"We above all should remember the easy open-handed generosity, never equalled anywhere at any time; the formidable technical skill and the readiness to share it with the world; the respect for weaker neighbors' views and preferences, which wasn't always there but has now been maintained with laudable patience for 25 years."

Car Insurance Urged on B.C.

underwrite both the Columbia and Peace River hydro projects. "I don't see that it makes a great deal of difference to the people who are working, whether it is public or private money."

Mr. Price said he recognized the government had to raise more money to provide more services and that the gasoline tax would be a constant supplier of funds, but thought that if the government could at the same time save motorists money, it should do so.

He said gasoline was a natural resource and he believed the tax could be absorbed out of profit on gasoline sales.

SAVE MORE

Mr. Price said people of B.C. paid $35,341,000 in automobile insurance premiums in B.C. in 1959. "I do know that in the province of Saskatchewan, they save a great deal more than here, although comparisons are different, because plans differ," he said. "But, I do know, I find the people of Saskatchewan highly satisfied," the Premier said to the delight of CCFers, who continually press the government for provincial automobile insurance, similar to that operated by the Saskatchewan CCF government.

"It is something the province of B.C. might consider. If it is possible to save the people money, we might take notice," he said.

CAPITAL GAINS

He warned that the government must not burden one class of people with revenue collecting taxes and suggested "the time is coming when we must consider a capital gains tax on real estate... The province of B.C. could step into this field and net a very high revenue."

He said there had been no revenue to the province on the millions of dollars a month of property turned over in the past few years.

He said that if the government were to expand its super-annuation program and step into the life insurance field, it could build up vast funds that could be drawn upon as borrowings for contingent liabilities, thereby keeping interest payments in B.C.

Mr. Price was critical of some doctors who say they are overworked.

"Some doctors, I know of, tell mothers to wrap a sick child up and bring it to their offices... I think a doctor like that should be reported to the medical association," he said.

Mr. Price said he had information that 400 doctors had tried to get into B.C. and had been refused permission. He was critical of the B.C. Medical Association and told the legislature, "I don't think we should be fostering a monopoly."

"If it is found doctors are refused... It is time for the B.C. government to take over licensing of doctors," he said.

He said a great deal of health costs could be avoided, if people paid attention to proper diet and exercise, and said "the time is coming when the use of tobacco will be placed in the same category as narcotics... it is an addiction."

He said unemployment today is more serious than it ever was, because "this is a push-button age with oil furnaces and electric stoves, for which you can't just go out and cut wood when you have no money. Credit purchases mean the unemployed hit the bottom financially in a short time."

Red Cross 'Losing Identity'

MOOSE JAW—The financial status of the Canadian Red Cross has been blamed on public apathy and the fact the organization has lost its identity through united appeals.

D. Bruce Shaw, chairman of the national executive of the Canadian Red Cross, told the provincial Red Cross annual convention that "there is a lack of realization on the part of the public as to what the Red Cross is doing, and what its needs are."

"United appeals have proved very effective in those areas which lend themselves to such a campaign, but they are not the answer for our whole program by any means."

MEDICINE HAT—Selen Low, former national Social Credit party leader, said here R. N. Thompson of Red Deer, Alta., national party president, might be his successor. Describing the field as "wide open," Low said he did feel neither Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta nor Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia would seek the post.

HOLLYWOOD—Dinah Shore announced she has refused an offer by the Chevrolet division of General Motors to sponsor her TV show next year because "they wanted me to be hostess for a series of big specials to tie in with sales drives and promotional campaigns." A friend said Dinah "didn't want to be an adjunct to the General Motors sales department."

MONTREAL—Judge T. A. Fontaine, noting that "a most revolting crime against humanity" had been committed, sentenced Gilles Hebert, 23, to four years in prison for stealing $34,000 worth of Salk vaccine at the height of a 1959 polio epidemic.

HALIFAX—Gen. Charles Foulkes, of Victoria, chairman of the Canadian Chiefs of Staff

What's all the excitement at Shelbourne and Cedar Hill?

It all started on Thursday, this week. That was the day the doors opened on yet another new branch of The Bank of Nova Scotia. This new BNS is located in the shopping centre at Shelbourne Street and Cedar Hill Crossroad, Victoria—and everyone who's seen it agrees it's a credit to the community—modern, attractive, and up-to-date in every detail. Naturally, the manager and his staff are proud of their new branch, and invite you to drop in as soon as you can and see it for yourself. The very latest and best ideas in both personal and business banking service are included, together with such extra customer conveniences as a night depository and ground-floor safety deposit boxes. To make your visit to the new BNS even more worthwhile, we have free school book covers for the children, and copies of the handy BNS Pocket Guide to Family Spending for you. Supplies, however, are limited, so plan to make your visit soon.

FBI Arrives At Crash

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Agents of the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation arrived in Belgium Thursday to join in efforts to identify the burned, mangled bodies of 73 persons killed Wednesday in the crash of a Belgian jet airliner.

Aboard the jet were 49 Americans, including 18 members of a figure skating team headed for the world championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

For Pupils

More Books In '61

Libraries in Greater Victoria schools will get more books and services this year, if the budget permits, a spokesman said yesterday.

A recent survey has shown, said school superintendent John Gough, that library shelves in many local schools are inadequately supplied with books at the present time.

$1.50 PER PUPIL.

"The board is working in the direction of increasing the present library allocation of $1.50 per pupil for the year so that these services can be improved," he said.

Mr. Gough was commenting on the statement that the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation has found "a pressing need" and called for a survey of all school libraries in the province. The PTA library services committee backed a Chant report recommendation that spending on school libraries be increased to $2.43 per pupil.

ADEQUATE

Mrs. Frank Thompson, head of the local committee which took part in the province-wide survey of school libraries for the federation, said local services were considered adequate because pupils could also use facilities of Victoria Public Library.

This was not the case in some parts of the neighboring rural Saanich school district, according to federation report, which quoted a spokesman for Cordova Bay Elementary School PTA:

"Our library has been taken over as a classroom; we lost our activity room in a similar fashion last year, and we expect to join our high school on a swing-shift next September. In spite of this, the school has three times defeated a bylaw to build new schools."

Prosecutor Warmly Endorsed

Victoria's choice of W. W. Cameron as its new city prosecutor was endorsed yesterday by Saskatchewan Attorney-General R. A. Walker.

Mr. Walker told the Colonist from Regina "everything Mr. Cameron did while head of the Securities Exchange Commission was unimpeachable" with a resulting "healthy atmosphere maintained" in the investment field in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Cameron has served in the dual capacity as magistrate in the Regina area and head of the SEC for the province since the fall of 1958.

The attorney-general said Mr. Cameron was a "man of independent means" who could go where he liked to work and wanted to escape the climate on the Prairies.

No One Hurt In Crash

Cars were heavily damaged but neither driver was injured in a two-car crash at Shelbourne and Cedar Hill Crossroads late yesterday.

Saanich police said a car driven by Mrs. J. R. Terry, 2145 Humber Road, was hit while crossing the Shelbourne intersection by a car driven by Bela Almadi, 124 Bushby.

Kennedy Moves On Farm Front

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy yesterday sent to congress an "emergency" proposal to bolster farm income by cutting 1961 production of surplus feed grains, while raising price supports for feed grains, soybeans and cottonseed.

It was the first major action taken by Kennedy on the farm front since he became president.

BULLETIN:

Remarkable ingredient that would boil in your refrigerator helps Super Shell give your car quick starts and top performance in coldest Victoria weather

The 9 ingredients in Super Shell are adjusted every season to give top performance in any weather.

In Winter, Super Shell is primed with extra butane—an ingredient so eager to get going that it would boil and vaporize before your eyes if you could remove it from Super Shell's formula. Butane would even boil in your refrigerator.

In Super Shell, butane gives you faster firing on cold days. Takes a big strain off your battery. And an even bigger one off your patience.

IF YOU HAVE any trouble starting your car in cold weather, your gasoline could be the culprit.

It may not be vaporizing as promptly as it should. And until it starts to vaporize and mix with air in your carburetor, gasoline has a hard time "firing" your engine.

What Shell scientists do to give you quick starts

Shell scientists attack the starting problem by giving Super Shell an extra dose of butane as soon as the cold weather sets in. Butane is highly volatile—which means that it changes easily from a liquid to a vapour. The change is the same sort of thing that happens when water boils and turns into steam. But butane actually boils and vaporizes at 31.1°F.—lower than the temperature inside your refrigerator. Shell stores it under pressure to keep it from vaporizing by itself.

You can imagine what this remarkable ingredient does in Super Shell. Increases its volatility dramatically. Fires your engine in a hurry. Takes a big strain off your battery—and also off your patience.

Butane has hot-weather benefits, too—an odd little paradox

Shell's refining experts always add a certain amount of butane to Super Shell—even in mid-summer. This may sound paradoxical. But it isn't.

Volatile butane also happens to have an outstanding anti-knock value at high temperatures. So this winter-start ingredient has a summer benefit, too. It helps smooth out your car's performance in June as much as in January.

Now that you know about butane, why not take a couple of extra minutes and learn about the eight other ingredients in today's Super Shell? It's essential reading if you want to know the secret of top performance.

Ingredient #2 is TCP for power, mileage and longer plug-life

Today's Super Shell contains an even better version of this famous additive.

Test proves how TCP neutralizes glowing deposits. The electrically heated piston, above, has been sprinkled with two kinds of engine deposit. The glowing deposit, at left, had not been neutralized with TCP. The deposit on the right had. With TCP in action, there is no trace of glow.

It was originally developed for use in aviation gasoline.

TCP® additive can give your car up to 15 per cent more power; 17 extra miles per tankful; and make your plugs last twice as long.

Aviation-grade TCP does this by neutralizing the harmful effects of engine deposits. It stops them from glowing when hot—a major cause of power loss.

It also stops them from diverting your spark—a major cause of "missing."

Ingredient #3 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr

This is petroleum that has actually cracked under 1000-degree heat and catalytic action. Its heavier molecules have been shattered into livelier lighter ones.

The result is a high-octane ingredient that makes your engine purr with power the moment you put your foot down.

Shell men check furnace which pre-heats the petroleum before it is fed into cat-cracker. Stand near by, and the roar sounds like Hadad.

NOTE: "Cat-cracking" refers to the use of a catalyst—a substance that has the mysterious ability to alter molecules without changing itself.

Ingredient #4 is heavy alkanes—for both power and economy at all speeds

Shell scientists will tell you that gasoline can be too sensitive.

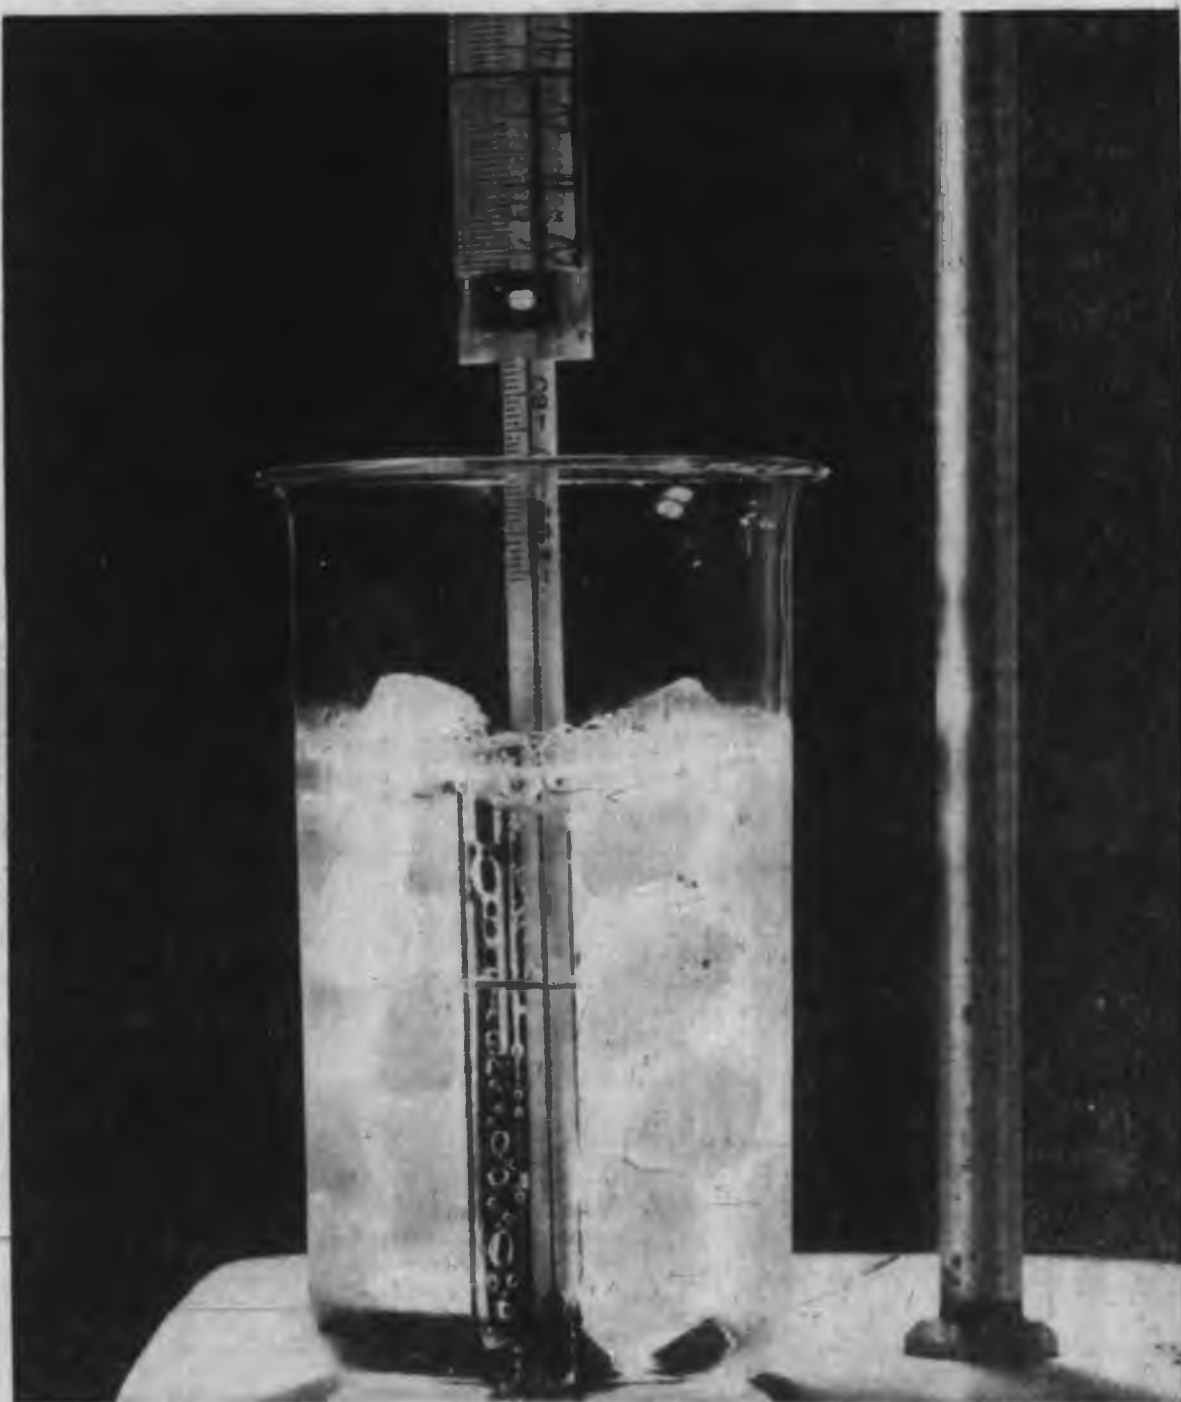

That's their unflattering description of a "touchy" gasoline that performs well enough when you're driving slowly, but causes knock and loss of power when you speed up.

So they put heavy alkanes into Super Shell. This ingredient is prized for its insensitivity. It keeps octane ratings high enough to give you plenty of knock-free power at all speeds.

NOTE: Heavy alkanes also have the advantage of lowering your fuel consumption. Your engine can use them up slowly—and still give you all the power you need.

Ingredient #5 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks

You might suppose that two high-octane ingredients are enough to give you knock-free performance. But Butane boiling on the rocks. Shell scientists use this "boiling-point test" to check the volatility of butane, the quick-start ingredient in Super Shell. They pour butane at sub-zero temperatures into that ice-packed test tube. As soon as it boils, they check the thermometer. Here you see butane boiling and vaporizing at 31.1°F. This eagerness to get going works wonders on cold mornings.

Shell's scientists have ears like musicians.

They insist on adding a special anti-knock-mix. A mix, so effective, one teaspoon per gallon can boost anti-knock rating by seven points.

This mix has the tricky job of regulating combustion so that Super Shell gives each piston a firm, even push—rather than a sharp blow which would cause a knock.

Ingredient #6 is an "anti-icer" to stop stalls due to carburetor icing

Super Shell's formula is adjusted up to eight times a year for your area to beat the weather. Whenever the temperature is likely to be less than forty-five degrees, an anti-ice ingredient is added.

Why add anti-ice at forty-five degrees? Because, even then, frost can form in your carburetor just as it does in your refrigerator. It can choke your engine dead.

Ingredient #7 is a mixture of pentanes for fast warm-ups on cold days

Pentanes are made by tearing gasoline apart, much as you split logs into kindling to start a log fire.

In this case, the "logs" are petroleum's heavier hydrocarbons. A special process transforms their molecules from slow-burning "logs" to quick-firing "kindling."

NET RESULT: Fast warm-up and top performance in a hurry.

Ingredient #8 is a special gum- preventive to keep the fuel system clean

Even the purest gasoline can form gum when stored. This can clog carburetors, fuel lines, and pumps. But with Super Shell, you needn't worry. A special gum-preventive does the trick.

It acts like a policeman controlling a mob. Keeps an eye on unstable elements—stops them from clotting and forming gum. Super Shell makes gummed-up engines a thing of the past.

Ingredient #9 is Platformate for extra energy, more mileage

It takes one million dollars' worth of platinum catalyst for Shell to produce Platformate. But fortunately for you and for us, this precious stuff can be used over and over again.

The platinum process, which gives Platformate its odd name, re-forms petroleum into super-energy components—such as benzene, toluene, and xylene.

These three alone release 7 per cent more useful energy per gallon than the best 100-octane aviation gasoline.

Smoke Eaters Defeat Czechs, 6-3

VIENNA (AP)—Trail Smoke Eaters, Canada's entry in next month's world hockey championships in Switzerland, Thursday defeated the Czech team, Red Star of Brno 6-3. Radio Prague reported.
 The game was played at the opening period.

The Czechs got the jump on the Canadians, scoring goals in the second and third minutes of play.
 Defenceman Don Fletcher and left-winger Walter Peacock tied the score in the seventh and ninth minutes of the opening period.

Playing coach Bob Kromm put Trail ahead 3-2 in the 12th minute before the Red Star team knotted the count again after 18 minutes.
 Just before the whistle blew ending the first period, right-winger Norm Lenardon gave the Canadians a 4-3 edge.

Trail bottled up the Czechoslovakian offence after that. George Ferguson and Dave Russell added Smoke's last two goals in the 10th and 13th minutes of the second frame. Penalties were called against one Czech and five Canadian players.

Contractor's Letter Stirs New Storm

By PETER BRUTON

A friend of Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi was identified yesterday as having been the "contact man" between the minister and a construction firm headed by U.S. contractor Clyde W. Thornton.

Thornton was sent to jail in the same case which saw the minister fined $1,000 for contempt of court.

A letter from Thornton, read by the legislature yesterday, said the project manager of a highways construction job that the minister was displeased because two men had been sent to see him and that no request for such a meeting had been made by Burton Lymburner, an acquaintance of Mr. Gagliardi.

INTERJECTIONS

Alex Macdonald (CCF—Vancouver East) read the full text of the letter, dated "Sunday evening, July 8, 1958."

Mr. Macdonald, whose speech was constantly interrupted by government interjections, said Lymburner had said out and resigned from both L & M Logging (which later became Union Contractors) and Bonanza Construction Company four months prior to the letter being written.

Thornton was one of the men who bought out Lymburner.

WELL SATISFIED

One paragraph of the letter said:

"I was also informed that the department is well satisfied with the job which you are doing but was also informed that all matters which are to be brought to the attention of the department should be left in the hands of Mr. Lymburner."

The letter was sent by Thornton to Glenn Geery, the then project manager who later in the year sued Union Contractors and Thornton for arrears in wages and wrongful dismissal. He won his case.

SOLD OUT

"Lymburner sold and resigned from both companies four months before," said Mr. Macdonald. "Why is he the contact man with the minister? Why, if the minister's door is always open, should these people see him, only at the request of Lymburner?"

Government members charged that Mr. Macdonald was a character assassin.

AFTER CHURCH

Thornton wrote that the minister's views had been expressed to Lymburner and himself "tonight after church." "Why could not a legitimate contractor raise matters with the minister of the department himself?" asked the CCFer.

WISH HE HAD

He also hit out at Attorney-General Robert Bonner for saying in Vancouver last week that he didn't personally advise the highways minister but "I only wish I had."

The attorney-general had said that he was not certain he would have given the minister "any different advice than his departmental officials had."

UNPARLIAMENTARY

Mr. Macdonald said this was an "arrogant and sanctimonious" attitude of government. Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz ruled that it was unparliamentary to impute arrogance on the part of a cabinet minister.

"If imputing that a minister is arrogant is improper, then I withdraw," said the CCFer.

MORE HOT WATER

Mr. Macdonald was again in hot water when he criticized the attorney-general for expressing no regret or concern about the contempt of court conviction of his colleague.

"I accept full ministerial responsibility for the advice rendered by my department and in view of the unfortunate result of that advice I am only sorry that I can't accept it personally," said Mr. Bonner.

USUAL DIET

"This is the same attorney-general who for more than two years saw nothing wrong in the conduct of Lands and Forests Minister Sommers," said Mr. Macdonald.

"The usual diet," said Premier Bennett hotly. "The usual diet, the usual diet."

"You have to bend pretty low," snapped Mr. Bonner.

LOWER MORALITY

"There's been a general lowering of the public moral standard over the past several years," said the CCFer.

"I think the honorable member should apologize to the province for that," said Mr. Bonner.

"Why don't you bring this up in the public accounts committee?" asked Premier Bennett.

"Because I'm not on the committee," replied Mr. Macdonald.

FOR PUBLIC'S EARS

"The public wants to hear this," shouted Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie).

"The press is not allowed in the committee," added Mr. Strachan.

"Are you in the press?" the premier asked him.

CCF Urges 'Portable' Pension Plan

A portable pension scheme that could be carried from job to job is needed in British Columbia, Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie) told the legislature yesterday.

He said if a person leaves his job, his pension usually is lost too. "Sometimes people want to move... sometimes the company wants them to move... but the pension keeps them there."

Maximum for Health Centre—Kinsmen

Victoria Kinsmen's Club has offered up to $25,000 to help with the construction of a proposed new health centre for Saanich municipality.

Minimum amount the club will donate to help build the centre is $5,000, president Howard Roche said last night.

Ford leads in style and value carefree Ford brakes adjust automatically

Another Ford Extra At No Extra Cost—One of the many quality features of the beautiful 1961 Ford is the way it actually adjusts its own brakes for safer driving and less maintenance—there should be no need to have the brakes mechanically adjusted for the life of the linings. Each time you apply the brakes while backing up, they automatically adjust for any wear. Your Ford Dealer has such confidence in quality features like this that he has extended his warranty to 12,000 miles.*

New 12,000 Mile Warranty Backs These Features That Make Ford, Canada's First Carefree Car

Lubricates itself—Your new Ford will normally go 30,000 carefree miles without chassis lubrication. Then, an inexpensive lubrication (between $4.00 and $6.00) will normally set it up for the next 30,000 miles.

Cleans its own oil—Ford's Full Flow oil filter gives up to 4,000 carefree miles between oil changes.

Adjusts its own brakes—The new carefree brakes automatically adjust themselves for wear.

Protects its own body—All vital underbody parts are specially processed to resist rust and corrosion.

Guards its own muffler—Carefree Ford mufflers are double-wrapped and aluminized to normally last three times as long as ordinary mufflers.

Takes care of its own finish—Carefree Diamond Lustre Finish never needs waxing.

New 12,000 mile warranty—Ford-Monarch-Falcon Dealers give a written warranty on all 1961 Ford cars for 12,000 miles or one full year, whichever comes first.

(Excludes Ontario, Quebec, and certain other areas)

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

At last there came a day when Will Yolen didn't have to hunt tigers, didn't have to hunt leopards, didn't have to do anything but the thing he went to India to do, the thing he does better than anybody else in the world—fly kites. He was a guest in the hunting palace of the Maharajah of Bharatpur, about 100 miles south of Delhi, and the Maharajah had mentioned that he was not only the top tiger hunter of his area, but also the greatest kite flyer in the whole Indian empire.

"He told me," Will said, "that he killed his first tiger on the palace lawn and won his first kite fight the same day, when he was 14. We were through hunting and had this day off and the Prince said it was perfect weather for flying and did anybody care for a sporting venture. I said I'd be glad to accommodate him.

"I sweet-talked him a while, giving him the soft sell because I remembered that rat in Calcutta who had crossed my string with his and deliberately cut my kite down. I told the Prince that in our country it was a game of skill; though they fought kites in India, I said, there was a world brotherhood of kite flyers, a kinship that transcended mere kite fighting.

"The Prince is a handsome guy, very sporting. He agreed or seemed to, but I'd learned my lesson in Calcutta and I was taking no chances. Especially when I saw the Prince had the same glazed string that sneak used to cut me down in Calcutta. Then when we started, my confidence was shaken.

"In the first place, I didn't have my own rod and reel along. I've explained how I fly kites off a fishing rod. I had to borrow tackle from Joe Cox, the hunter, and I wasn't familiar with the reel action. Then when I saw that the Prince had a royal kite bearer, that really shook me.

Handed String to Prince

"He had this joker all dressed up in a flashy uniform, but barefoot. The stooge brought out a kite, ran it up, and handed the string to the Prince. I whipped my kite around with the rod and sent it up and started making it perform.

"Kite flying is probably the least organized sport in the world. I wrote to Lyman Bingham once trying to get it into the Olympics, but he gave me some double-talk about professionalism. My God, who ever heard of a professional kite flyer? All kite flyers die poor. Anyhow, we kind of make up the rules as we go along. When I won the Western Hemisphere championship in Nassau in 1957, it was decided on who could get his kite up fastest and highest, make it do the most tricks like dancing, looping, rolling, and figure-eights.

"Actually, I could have claimed the world championship then, because I beat guys from all over the world. But I didn't want to be selfish. The man from South Africa, for instance, he was a big man in his country, so we let him go home as the champion of South Africa. But now I was up against the champion of India, and they claim to be the greatest kite flyers in the world.

"Well, I was mighty careful not to let the Prince get around me and cross my string. With my rod and reel, I could control my kite better than he could. He'd dive on me and I'd fake him out. I was putting on a real good show.

"Finally, after about an hour or so, I employed a gambit that I had originated in Central Park in 1948 to destroy Pablo Diablo. You never heard of Willie the Devil, I suppose? Well, you've led a sheltered life.

He'd Cut Anybody Down

"He was a Puerto Rican from around 110th Street and Cathedral Parkway, a rooftop flyer. You probably don't even know that there are ground kite flyers and rooftop kite flyers. Up around 110th Street, they fight each other clear off the roof. Pablo Diablo used a box kite with tape around the edges studded with Gillette blades, and he'd cut anybody down.

"The way I beat him, an what I used against the Prince. I just kept nursing my kite lower and lower, waiting for a sudden shift of wind. When it came, I shot my kite up and the Prince's dove into a cove of trees, and when he pulled it out it was garbage.

"The Prince was very sporting about it. I gave him one of my Falcon kites—it soars like a falcon—and he gave me one of his. I figure I'm the world champion now, because he was top man in India and I'd already cleaned up everybody else. That's how it goes in this game; if you beat the king, you're the new king, and titles can be won and lost only in the air.

"My great regret is, I never took up the sport until after the Second World War. As a kid I wasted my time playing baseball when I should have been flying kites.

"So that was my trip to India. I didn't shoot a tiger and I didn't shoot a leopard. I had an assignment to interview Nehru about kite flying for a magazine—he's very good. I understand—but I crapped out there, too. When I called to see him, he was a few hundred miles away.

"Next to my friendship with the Prince, maybe the most gratifying thing was my treatment by the S.A.S. I had a big duffel bag full of non-rigid kites with smaller ones in a guitar case and they let me carry 'em aboard so I could fly at airport stops. At first they thought the kites should be stowed in the luggage compartment, but when I explained I was really in their business, they extended professional courtesies."

Perlette, who has Ken Sturrock as third, Jim McPherson second and Joe Dukowski lead, has won four in a row. The rink is in the eighth of the Alberni Hardware Primary event in the 16th of the Daily Colonist Primary.

John Pickup's Alberni Valley crew has a 40 record as does that of Dean Hayne, Haney, and both are in the same position as Perlette in the major events.

HOME TOWNERS
Other unbeaten rinks, but with 30 records, are Jim MacRae and Jack Arnet, both home-town quartets.

Best game of the bonspiel occurred on the late draw Wednesday when Hayne turned back Bud Clift, Nanaimo, 3-4, in an extra-end game.

The mainland skip drew perfectly to the four-foot ring to tie the game on the home end, then put a guarded rock back on the eight-foot on the extra end. Don MacRae, skip, a difficult double takeout with his last rock and just missed.

RESULTS
ALBERNI HARDWARE (Primary)
Hayne, skip, 4; Clift, second; Pickup, third; MacRae, fourth.

TRAIL — Mrs. Margaret Fuller of Nanaimo won her second B.C. women's curling championship in four years here Thursday morning by defeating a Kimberley rink skippered by Mrs. Ina Hansen 8-7 in an extra-end game.

The victory gave Mrs. Fuller's rink a 9-1 record in an 11-rink round-robin series and the right to carry B.C. colors to the first all-Canada women's curling final in Ottawa, Feb. 27-March 2.

Two other members of the 1957 champion Nanaimo rink were at the torch to share in the distinction. Vice-skip Mrs. Sylvia Koster and second Mrs. Edna Quinley were on the 1957 team.

New Plan Next Year

TRAIL (CP)—Mrs. H. Hines of Port Moody, B.C., was elected new president of the B.C. Ladies Curling Association, succeeding Mrs. Marion Brenner of Trail.

Other officers elected at the association's annual meeting were Mrs. O. Purvis, New Westminster, first vice-president; Mrs. J. H. Morris, Trail, secretary; Miss N. Usher, Vancouver, treasurer.

The 1958 championships will be held in Penitence. The executive also decided that next year the province would be divided into four curling districts with one winner from each district taking part in the provincial final.

WINNIPEG (CP)—John David Lyon of suburban West Kildon defeated Barry Greenleaf of Portage la Prairie 8-7 Thursday night in a thrilling final to win the Manitoba curling playoffs and the right to represent the province in the Canadian championship.

The 27-year-old Lyon, who represented Newfoundland in the Canadian final at Fort William last year, and the 22-year-old Greenleaf, youngest skip in the playoffs, curled to the wire.

Both rinks were tied 7-7 after 11 ends and Greenleaf had last rock coming home when misses by the Portage front end set Lyon up with a shot rock he successfully potted.

Lyon made the playoffs by Lead on the Fuller rink is Miss Fernande Smith. It was a fight for first prize. A loss would have sent Mrs. Fuller into a three-way play-off with rinks skippered by Mrs. Catherine Wright of Vancouver and Mrs. Hansen.

The Fuller rink got off the mark slowly. They were down 7-3 after eight ends but scored three on the ninth end and tied the game on the 10th.

Mrs. Fuller's rock was lying shot on the extra end and Mrs. Hansen's last stone fell just inches short for the winning point.

PRAGUE (AP)—Organizers of the world figure skating championships Thursday night formally requested the International Skating Union to reconsider its decision to cancel the event.

The ISU's executive committee was voted by a substantial majority to abandon the 1961 championships, scheduled to start in Prague next Wednesday, because of the death of 18 U.S. skaters in the crash of a jet airliner near Brussels Wednesday.

The memory of the American skaters "will best be honored by holding this top figure skating competition" organizers told the ISU.

CARRIED ON
It was pointed out that in 1947 most members of the Czech hockey team were killed in a plane crash en route London "but in spite of this the world championships were held." the official Czech news agency Ceteka reported.

Ceteka said the ISU's decision was especially surprising because many foreign skaters already were in Prague.

A spokesman for the Prague organizing committee said the tournament committee decided Wednesday to hold the championships although "everybody was shocked and deeply moved by the tragic death of the American skaters."

COSTLY EVENT
He said preparations for the meet had cost more than $100,000 so far and arrangements had been completed for 16-nation European television coverage of the competition.

Most skaters from the favored Canadian team and Soviet Russia were among the competitors from six countries already here. Nine other countries also were entered.

The spokesman said the organizing committee was surprised to get first news of the cancellation from a news agency rather than from ISU headquarters in Davos, Switzerland.

BY COMMITTEE
George Haesler, secretary-general of the ISU, said in Davos "the cancellation decision was made by the ISU executive committee. He declined to name the members who voted against holding the meet.

"This is the only correct decision," said Dr. Jacob Koch, ISU president, in Basel, Switzerland. Both he and Haesler had urged the executive committee to call off the tournament. Dr. Koch said a substantial majority of the nine-member committee voted to abandon the championships.

Dr. Koch said he had been contacted on the telephone by F. Ritter Shumway, acting president of the U.S. Figure Skating Association, who had urged that the championships be held.

"I think our skaters would have wanted the championships to go on," said Shumway.

Sooke commercial trollers will get a five-day fishing week—from midnight Sundays to midnight Fridays, through July 16 to Sept. 24—instead of the two-day week that will apply to net fishermen and had been proposed for trollers from William Head to Port Renfrew.

It has not been publicly announced, but it has been reliably indicated the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission has taken a second look at its original proposals and come up with the compromise suggested in a brief presented by Sooke commercial trollers.

The trollers suggested that fishing be stopped only at the weekends, and argued this would curtail activities of moonlighting weekend commercial fishermen without hurting the bona fide troller.

Best figures obtainable show there are about 800 putter (boats under 20 feet) fishermen with $1 commercial fishing licences in the Victoria-Sooke area and most of them would be moonlighters—regularly employed workers who take out licences to supplement income, beat the sports catch limit, and/or purchase goods without paying full taxes.

Last humpback salmon year—1959—it was estimated moonlighters caught 17,000 of the humpbacks.

Commercial fishing for all winter springs during December and January '61 next season will almost certainly be stopped . . . and there are some indications that within a few years sportsmen may feel a curtailment of winter fishing.

Commercial winter spring fishing is already outlawed by regulation, but special permission has usually been granted by the area director of fisheries each year. That permission, according to our information, is not likely to be forthcoming next year. Trouble is the biggest percentage of the winter catch is jacks, just over the 2½-pound dressed commercial weight limit, and times up to five and six pounds.

These winter springs are feeding fish, not migratory fish, and have one or two years in which to grow to heavy-weight salmon. Left alone they would grow bigger, and nobody would miss out in the long run. Times fetch 35 cents to 40 cents a pound and the bigger springs 54 cents to 70 cents a pound.

So, fisheries officials, argue, it is just commonsense to wait until they grow up.

Island steelhead fishermen are still facing yo-yo conditions on all Island rivers—up high one day, down low the next, and about the only thing they can do is go and have a look at water conditions and, if they are fishable go after the steelhead.

Some are having luck. The Koksilah has been giving up a few and Stan McCarthy recently landed a big one there Sunday on spin 'n' glo, because the river was too high to play it properly. San Juan and Harris Creek have been producing a few steelhead in upper reaches and roads are expected to be clear, but rough this weekend. If you plan to go via Shawanigan Lake, it would be advisable to take along chains. There was three inches of snow in the higher sections at mid-week, although the road was quite passable.

Sooke waters appeared ideal for fishing at weekend, but no fish were reported. Cowichan River is still too high. Nahmint River at the outlet of Nahmint Lake and Coos Creek on the Alberni Inlet have been providing good steelheading, but must be reached by plane or boat. Franklin River, Coleman Creek, China Creek, Stamp and Ash are all giving up some and in the Campbell River area the Quinsam has been best producer.

Gale Gow reports Shawanigan Lake fishing good on canoe, troll and worm and caught five Sunday morning to prove her point. Bear Lake, at Meschie on Cowichan Lake has been good for still fishing with worm.

TWO WEEKENDS

No brant have shown yet, but now is the time to look for them at Cherry Point and Sidney Spit. There are only two more weekends left in the season and if they are going to show, it has to be now.

Victoria waterfront fishing has been slow because of bad weather, but some good-sized springs have been caught around Coal Island in Sidney waters. Jim Chaplin caught an 18-pounder there this week.

Bluebacks are hitting buck-falls and gang trolls in Saanich Inlet at the Stone House and in the waters between The Boulder and Quarry Bay—one day on one side of the inlet, another on the other and sometimes in the middle.

SOME LIMITS

Harry Talbot got an eight-pound spring at Indian Bay Wednesday on a Lucky Louie herring scale plug, 150 feet of line and a planer. Dan Thomas and George Bridges have been limited at Quarry Bay and George Gilton has been limited at Stone House. Art Mawer and party landed 12 blues at mid week.

At Chemainus, Jimmy Buckner landed a 32-pounder on the weekend, just off the MacMillan and Bloedel docks, biggest fish from the bay in three years—it took him one hour and 20 minutes to land it on 12-pound test line.

Hunting history has been made at Ladner, where the first known Canadian recovery of a Russian-banded snow goose was obtained in mid-January. The recovery has been reported to the Russian Academy of Science in Moscow.

Ronald Mus has emerged as the sportsman of the year at Ladysmith. He was recently awarded trophy for the heaviest field-dressed deer of the season—a 210-pounder; a trophy for the biggest steelhead caught so far this year by a Ladysmith Sportsmen's Club member, a 14½-pounder; and a trophy for the biggest set of horns.

Alan Welch had biggest trout, a 6.8-pounder; John Dick had best equal-size horns; and Len Jaycock, freakiest horns.

Club president Onni Parta made presentations.

Lions Plan Seattle Game

SEATTLE (AP) — General manager Herb Capozzi of the British Columbia Lions and Walter Van Camp of Greater Seattle met Thursday to complete plans for a July 29 exhibition game here between the Lions and the Saskatchewan Roughriders, both of the Western Football Conference.

Interest in the game was stirred locally when two University of Washington backs signed with the Canadian club. Bob Schlorff, 1959 All-America quarterback, has joined with the Lions. Don McKeta will play for Roughriders.

Hab Marksmen Fatten Totals By Bombing Boston Bruins

Bernie Geoffrion, held pointless for two games, exploded for two goals and three assists to regain the National Hockey League scoring lead last night as Montreal Canadiens closed in on the first-place Toronto Maple Leafs with a 9-1 rout of Boston Bruins.

Canadiens, reeling in second place six points behind just two days ago, looked as mighty as ever last night. Coupled with a 3-1 triumph sive specialist and general utility man, scored the first hat trick of his seven-year NHL career and added an assist. Jean Beliveau, third man on the line, scored his 23rd of the season and others went to Dickie Moore, Doug Harvey and Phil Goyette.

Marshall was put on a line with Geoffrion and Beliveau five games ago, and the change has done wonders. The 28-year-old veteran, who had scored only four times in 51 games, now has scored six goals in the last five and collected a total of nine points.

Canadiens broke open a tight checking game with a five-goal flurry in the second period and went on for their most one-sided win of the season. Jim Bartlett was the only Bruin to beat Jacques Plante, who was going for his second shutout.

LONDON (CP) — Nearly 70,000 fans will pack Villa Park in Birmingham Saturday when Aston Villa meets Tottenham Hotspur in the fifth round of the Football Association Cup.

Last week, in a league match, Spurs beat Villa 2-1. Now the Villans have a chance for revenge but few forecasters can see them reversing the result.

Only three clubs have beaten Spurs in league play this season. They lead the first division by eight points and their all-star attack has scored 85 goals since August.

A few miles away, at St. Andrews, Birmingham City meets Leicester City in an all-round clash.

The only game in the south brings together second-division Leyton Orient and star-spangled Sheffield Wednesday. This crowd-pulling match will certainly swell Orient's bank account but it may also knock them out of the competition.

Norwich shocked the soccer world three years ago by reaching the semi-finals at the expense of several of the league's big guns, one of them Sunderland.

Now the second-division team is back on the cup trail and once again they've drawn Sunderland.

In the other ties, Swansea travels to Burnley, Newcastle meets Stoke; Barnsley clashes with Luton, and Sheffield United meets Blackburn, last year's losing finalists.

Garden Notes

Old Reliable Annuals

By M. V. CHESNUT, F.R.S.

As I have mentioned in previous columns, it is our habit, when doing our spring planting and sowing, to grow a few rows of annual flowers in a portion of our vegetable garden to supply cut flowers for the house. We could rob the perennial flower beds, of course, and often do so, but always with the sense of taking the second-best specimens for our vases and bowls and leaving the really superb ones to maintain the beauty of the garden. We get a lot more satisfaction from our rows of annuals out back, which we can cut to our heart's content without messing up the outdoor picture.

One of our favorite subjects for the cutting garden is the annual chrysanthemum, and I have often wondered why more gardeners don't take a crack at growing this grand flower. Not only do they keep on blooming all summer long, but the flowers also last exceptionally well in water and are free from that annoying habit of dropping petals and sticky pollen all over the furniture.

The flowers are single, daisy-like blooms in a great variety of colors, many of them with multi-colored bands on the petals that are strikingly beautiful. No particular effort is needed to grow them—simply sow the seeds in rows just like radishes, then thin out the seedlings to stand a foot apart.

Another thoroughly reliable and long-lasting annual is Cosmos. At one time, these flowers came only in rather washy, pastel shades, but in recent years they have been improved out of all recognition. Orange Flame, for instance, makes an outstanding cut flower with surprisingly large single blooms in a vivid orange shade. Mandarin is the same orange color, but with fully double flowers on long, wiry stems. Radiance is a deep rose shade overlaid with crimson toward the yellow-eyed centre.

We grow two kinds of carnations from seed, purely for cut flower purposes—the Chabaud type, blooming in about 18 weeks from seed, and the Giant Marguerite, not quite so closely double but beautifully fringed and delightfully fragrant. Chabaud carnations are actually true perennials and Giant Marguerite a biennial, but both will bloom the first summer from seed if they are started indoors or under glass in late February or early March and planted out in April.

For an abundance of excellent cut flowers, I can recommend the annual Scabious or Pincushion Flower. There is a wide range to choose from and in much more striking colors than their perennial cousins.

Snowball is a grand white, Mourning Bride and King of the Blacks are both very dark maroon shades and much in demand by flower-arranging enthusiasts, while Blue Moon is somewhat different from the rest—I think it must be a hybrid—with a mass of broad, wavy petals and without the usual pincushion centre.

Scabious seeds can be sown indoors in March or outdoors in April, with the indoor plants blooming a bit earlier. This plant is a lime-lover and will appreciate a cupful of hydrated lime scratched into each square yard of the sowing or planting site.

One flower which has been a complete flop with me is Arctotis. I am quite mad about this refined and elegant daisy flower from South Africa, particularly a variety with silvery white petals and a blue centre but, while they seem easy enough to grow, the petals are invariably chewed into lace curtains by earwigs and other creepy-crawly critters.

Parting of the Puff-Up Party

I hate to be a party pooper but the word from Hollywood is that some of the movie companies in Hollywood are giving up parties after movie screenings. Waste of money, they've decided. They don't really produce enough publicity to justify their cost. The pictures of movie stars for the fan magazines could just as well be taken some other place.

Ah, woe! A lot of people are going to have trouble eating out there. I have attended a few of the commercial routs given in Hollywood and I must say I was impressed by the opulence, the food, the fame of one or two of the guests, and the total obscurity of the rest of the people, as well as the general uselessness of the affair.

The commercial party—that is, a party whose goal is the launching of a movie, a book, or a starlet rather than the jollity of mutual friends—is one of the most neglected phenomena of our time. I have attended quite a number of these bashies for the purpose of promoting television as well as movies. The discovery that they are a waste of time, catering largely to the vanity of press agents and hardly productive of enough publicity to put in your eye, is one of those things like Galileo's discovery that the earth goes around the sun rather than vice versa. Tremendously important discovery. But why wasn't it obvious all along?

Many moons ago, I went to one of the flings flung practically all the time by the late Atwater Kent. Theoretically, these were just private parties bankrolled by Mr. Kent who was preposterously rich. However, I was astounded to discover that the guests who included Ginger Rogers, Merle Oberon, Elizabeth Scott, and about a hundred other luminaries, wore in addition to some fairly stunning beadwork, about an inch of makeup. I was young and innocent then and I thought people just donned makeup as a matter of course out there. Protection from the sun, I assumed.

Then I found that lurking in the shrubbery were roughly a score of photographers whose flash bulbs popped for hours. The photographers would take Ginger Rogers with Gregory Peck, then Ginger Rogers with Glenn Ford, then Merle Oberon with Gregory Peck, and so forth until all the combinations had been exhausted. At roughly 11 o'clock, the photographers quit and went. Within about two minutes all the luminaries had fled.

That was the sole idea—to get photographed. Without cameramen, what was there to live for? Which is not to say the party ended. It went on for hours with the press—or what passes for press in Hollywood. Hollywood seems with representatives of magazines you never heard of and they danced till dawn. Those imbecile photographs—some of them anyway—appeared in obscure fan magazines where they were drooled over by 13-year-old girls who had just flunked out of the fourth grade. And the whole thing cost not less than $10,000.

Is this worth it? Apparently the idea is just beginning to percolate that it isn't.

Hypodermic Darts

Cats 'Shot' for Own Good

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—The calm hunter sights along the barrel of his gun at the huge cougar high in a tall fir. He fires and the big cat crawls around the back of the tree, starts to slip, catches a limb with a paw and hangs for a moment before slipping to the ground.

The hunter leaps to the struggling animal, jams a stick in its mouth and dodging flailing claws—binds the cougar with the loops of a rope.

Then he pulls out a hypodermic needle and injects a drug into the hip of the cougar. If the giant cat shows signs of breathing difficulty, the hunter administers artificial respiration and injects a needle into the cat's heart.

The hunter is a surgeon and well-known anaesthetist, Dr. Thatcher S. Hubbard who once hunted cougars with a rifle and the nation could benefit from a marking program.

The doctor's gun propels darts with a charge of carbon dioxide. It is accurate up to about 180 feet.

The dart is loaded with the fast-acting nicotine sulphate which brings quick loss of muscle control. Then the doctor uses an injection of a curare drug—flaxedil—to keep the big cats under control after the original drug wears off in about eight minutes.

The slow acting curare drug does not affect the heart and unlike nicotine sulphate has an antidote. If the animal's heart stops, Dr. Hubbard uses an injection of Tension.

The doctor is still perfecting his technique for ear-tagging the cougars so their movements and life habits can be followed.

Even Lovely Lollo Dieting

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Susan Strassberg, who scores so potently in the Italian movie, "Kapò," plays a prostitute in her next, "The Violent Life."—And I can't wait," says Susie, who'll make the picture in Italy where she has rented an apartment for the next three years. ... In case some of you don't know, Miss Strassberg is the daughter of Paula and Leo Strassberg, drama teachers extraordinary to the top stars in the business, including Marilyn Monroe and Marlon Brando.

As it comes to nearly all of us, Gina Lollobrigida is on a weight-losing diet.

Alan Ladd, who said he would never return to Europe to make pictures after his long-ago 18-month tax sojourn there, will stay in Rome for two more movies.

Mrs. Michael Wilding decided that the sea air at Brighton was bad for her marriage and she has sold all her considerable property there and settled with Michael in the heart of Mayfair, London. Mike has been spending some time recently with his children by Elizabeth Taylor.

Is Robert Young playing the real-life role of grandfather knows best? His married daughter and her baby have been staying with him and mother Betty. Robert is taking a vacation from his Father Knows Best TV series to return to 20th Century-Fox for the sequel to "Sitting Pretty" with Clifton Webb and Maureen O'Hara.

Talking of television, when Connie Bennett checked into Desilu for a spot on the Ann Southern Show, everyone wanted to interview her. Connie used to be one of the most glamorous of movie stars and made headlines earning a $30,000-a-week salary, with an unknown (at that time) leading man, name of Ray Milland.

As for Ann Southern, now a big business woman, she is interested in producing a series with Lillian and Joan Ewery. Ann will not act in it.

There's a rumor around town that in addition to the gift of the purple Rolls-Royce, Mrs. Joan Cohn gave Laurence Harvey a lovely home in Bel Air. I find this hard to believe. But then, I didn't believe it about the Rolls until I asked Larry—and he said "True."

Claudette Colbert is a determined gal. She's looking for another play. Her last, "Julia, Jake and Uncle Joe," as you know, lasted only one night. I'm told that the pressure of getting this show on the road was a bit too much for Claudette.

There's a new King Kong—a play put on by dozens of amateurs and all to appear on the West End stage of London after great success in South Africa. The entire cast, I believe, is colored. If the show clicks in London, it will come to New York. A big producer is flying to Britain to look it over.

Rare, Royal Swans Enjoy Life

$200,000 If Genuine

Paris Police Crack Art Forgery Ring

PARIS (AP) — French police have charged a stateless painter with forging works attributed to Bernard Buffet and other artists. Police said the paintings would have been worth about $200,000 had they been genuine.

The painter, Georges Commene, of Greek origin — and two dealers, one of whom operated in Switzerland, were all arrested.

Last January Buffet strolled by the window of a Paris gallery and saw a painting bearing his signature which he had never seen before.

Police traced the painting back through a restaurant in Neuchâtel, Switzerland, to a dealer, M. Bern who had bought it for $2,000 from Johannes Erlmann, another Bern dealer.

Erlmann said he got the painting in Paris from antique dealer Ladislav Bein. Police raided Bein's shop and found 16 forged paintings bearing the names Buffet, Utrillo, Modigliani, Van Gogh, Braque, Dufy, Courbet and Vlaminck. Police said they also found a number of documents identifying the forger as Commene, who later confessed, police said.

U.S. Drug Firms Hit in Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — An opposition Labor party member of Parliament accused American drug companies of forcing up prices in the British market.

Labor MP Kenneth Robinson made the charge during the latest round in a bitter Parliamentary battle over a Conservative government proposal to raise fees for Britain's socialized health service.

Robinson said the health service is being "held in ransom" by the "shrewd enterprise" of drug firms.

He said American companies are forcing the pace all along the line and British firms have to follow suit, he said.

One reason for high drug prices is the advertising costs, Robinson said.

Doctors are being bombarded with advertising literature and free samples, he said, while others are being entertained lavishly on the European continent under the guise of official conferences.

Robinson's attack on the government-proposed fee increases was the latest in a marathon health service debate in the House of Commons.

DUNCAN — A pair of "immigrants" with slapstick ways and a "Rule Britannia" waddle are this district's latest contribution to the Canadian scene.

They are nine-month-old European ornamental royal mute swans, already weighing 22 pounds each. Life span is 50 years and adult weight a plump 50 pounds.

For their own amusement and obscure reasons they roll onto their sides, rest a leg on their chests, and navigate like torpedoes in the pool.

But death can lurk beneath their haughty, harmless looks.

"They are hard to mate, and sometimes the male will kill the female," said owner Mrs. Paul Chapman of Lakes Road.

The pair reigns supreme on their new pool-home, belching water as they eat, rolling onto their sides and tottering on spindly legs over tiny "Paradise Island."

They arrived Tuesday and are given the right-of-way by a pair of mandarin ducks, arrivals last month, which share the pool. Outside the fence 12 peacocks roam the Chapman farm.

"I have ordered a set of wood ducks and then my collecting will be complete," said Mrs. Chapman.

B.C.'s new flag, now flying in front of the legislative buildings, probably will be available for general distribution to government buildings within two months, a provincial official said yesterday.

Royal Navy Looks Ahead

'Sink and Swim' Ship Set

LONDON (Reuters) — The Royal Navy published Thursday its projected shipbuilding and weapons development program and broadly outlined operational deployment of the fleet for the fiscal year 1961-62.

Lord Carrington, first lord of the admiralty, said in an addendum to the government's navy estimates that many ships, planes and weapons now being "produced and developed will be entirely new to the Royal Navy."

Two more guided missile destroyers next year will join four now building. Each will be equipped with the improved Mark II Seaclub medium-range surface-to-air guided missile.

A new class of assault ship is on the drawing boards. The vessel will not be a command ship for small operations and be able to flood its after-compartment to allow landing craft to "swim" out of its stern. Assault ships usually lower landing craft over the side.

The new "sink and swim" vessel was said to have the speed to keep in company with an aircraft carrier, one of the fastest warships.

The addendum said three cruisers, a fast minelayer, five destroyers and 13 frigates will be scrapped next year as obsolete.

A total of 53 destroyers and frigates would be deployed around the world.

The 4th and 6th submarine divisions would operate under the control of the Australian and Canadian navies, respectively.

At Ottawa, Royal Canadian Navy officials said the RN's 6th submarine division has been based at Halifax under Canadian control for several years. This situation was merely being extended.

Thieves

New Low Hit

Thieves who stole a substantial sum of money laboriously earned by handicapped employees of Goodwill Enterprises "hit a new low," city police said last night.

Entry was gained by breaking the glass in a transom over a rear door, and the thieves then ransacked the office.

The business uses the abilities of handicapped persons to rehabilitate used clothing and household articles for resale.

At present 66 such persons are gainfully employed at Goodwill, 580 Yates, and the Rotary Club is backing a campaign to raise $25,000 for additional quarters to employ another 50 handicapped in the growing business.

As of yesterday, the campaign had attained a total of $6,424.

'Servants' Sicker

OTTAWA (CP) — Illness in the federal civil service increased 10.2 per cent during 1959, the bureau of statistics reported yesterday.

Government employees reporting ill in that year numbered 50,493 compared with 45,820 in 1958.

Royal Oak Still Five Cents

Letters to Royal Oak residents still cost five cents to mail.

Victoria Postmaster R. F. Reid said last night the suggestion that Royal Oak be included in the city's letter carrier service and four-cent postal zone is still under consideration by Ottawa officials.

Survey of Cordova Bay, to see if it is sufficiently built-up to warrant the same service, has been completed and reports are being prepared, Mr. Reid added.

Salt Spring Start Point For Georgia Gulf Race

GANGES — Scott Point Marina, Salt Spring Island, will be the starting point for the 1961 Gulf of Georgia predicted log race for power boats.

The race will be held on Sunday, April 9, from Scott Point Marina north to Southey Point, past the southeast point of Tree Island, through Dodds Narrows, then out around the end of Gabriola Island through the pass at Entrance Island, and across the gulf to Brockton Point, a total of 57 miles.

Each boat calculates its own time in passing the four check points to arrive at Brockton Point at 11 a.m. The winner will be the boat that is closest to its predicted time.

The race is being held in connection with Vancouver's 75th anniversary celebrations.

Postmaster Jail-Bound

COURTENAY — A sentence of 12 months for embezzling $6,111 in public funds was handed a former Alert Bay postmaster yesterday in police court here.

Charles Herbert Leslie, 35, was ordered to compensate the post office department for the total amount. An accumulation of $1,772 in superannuation contributions made by Leslie may be used as a credit toward repayment, said crown prosecutor T. G. Ryan.

The slightly-built, bespectacled father of three also was sentenced one month currently on each of seven other charges of falsifying reports to the post office department. The false certificates were used to cover up diversion of the money over a period of four months in 1959 and 1960.

Leslie entered a plea of guilty when he first appeared in court last week. Earlier he had readily admitted his crime when post office investigators uncovered the shortage.

Magistrate John Ryland said he was taking this into consideration in passing sentence, but that as a public servant Leslie had grossly betrayed a position of trust.

"It was not a sudden unpremeditated impulse and stemmed from living beyond your means and from drink," he said.

Magistrate Ryland said he would recommend accused be sent to Haney Correctional Institute.

Welfare Fraud

Not Rampant
But It's There

Fraud in obtaining welfare payments is "ever present," city welfare administrator William Hooson said yesterday, "but I wouldn't say it is rampant."

Perhaps one or two per cent of recipients or would-be recipients deliberately try to defraud the department, Mr. Hooson said.

Welfare Minister Wesley Black told the legislature this week that the province is cracking down on people who deliberately lie to qualify for payments, and Mr. Hooson agreed with him that progress is being made in detecting and preventing fraud.

QUICK CHECKS

A system of quick checking among welfare offices, he said, combined with strict insistence on proof of identification, has resulted in a reduction in the number of cases of persons obtaining assistance in more than one district.

In one notable case in the past, a man drew assistance in the same period in Victoria, help."

Reconstruction
Forges Ahead

Burned-Out Father
Grateful for Aid

Breadwinner of a family of 10 whose home on the West Saanich Indian Reserve was gutted by fire recently, last night asked for a chance to thank Greater Victoria residents who came to his family's assistance.

Sammy Sam, 35, a part-time truck driver, said "I'd like to thank all the people for their generosity. We've been so wonderful. We've got everything we need now."

Mr. Sam's family is staying with relatives on the reserve until the Indian band and In-

Liquor Stores Cold, Dreary

B.C. liquor stores are dreary and impersonal places, Tony Gargrave (CCF-Mackenzie) told the legislature yesterday.

"The most frequent word we hear in the liquor stores is 'next,'" Mr. Gargrave observed.

"We need specialty shops where customers can go in and discuss the qualities of liquors, such as the various wines," he said.

He charged that the impersonal attitude in liquor stores leads to intemperance. "There is a lot of puritanical talk about liquor," he said.

Guarding Her Two Cubs

Mama Bear Grabs Logger

By CHARLES THOMPSON

DUNCAN—The tale of the three bears took on new meaning for a local logger who was almost dragged into a hollow tree by a 400-pound mother bear guarding her two cubs.

Power saw operator Leonard Arnold was preparing an undercut before felling a large, hollow, cedar tree when the mother bear stuck her angry snout out of a hole and grabbed the toe of his boot.

"If the toe-cap hadn't been of steel that bear would have pulled me right in there with her," he said. "You can see the teeth marks in the toe."

After Arnold wrenched his foot away he left the still-running power saw across the hole to prevent the she-bear and her two cubs from coming out.

"It didn't try to raise the saw, but tried to dig under, and then I saw those long claws—it was quite a feeling."

Arnold said his escape was hampered by the fact that beneath him was a 20-foot sheer drop down the face of a cliff.

"I got there by coming down the rocks and I sure went up them fast when the teeth slipped off," he said.

The bears were later shot in their doomed shelter.

He said a logger-friend had his foot badly clawed one time in a similar incident and that another had some anxious minutes when he accidentally sawed through a bear while cutting into a tree.

Red Ship Due Soon
To Pick Up Wheat

Russian freighter Sa. Monovoronsk is due to arrive Feb. 25 to pick up the first Victoria shipment of wheat for Russia under an agreement recently signed by the wheat board.

The freighter will take a full cargo of 10,000 long tons. King Bros. Ltd. will be agent for the ship.

BCE Employees:

Nationalize
Bus Service!

"Nationalization" of the BCE bus service was recommended last night by some 180 Victoria employees of the transit system.

"If the BCE is to be allowed to get out of the transit business we believe the provincial government and the civic governments in the areas affected should take over the transit system," they said.

The statement was issued under the name of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, Local 109, and signed by president D. S. Dickinson.

"Our union sees no advantage to transit riders, downtown business interests or to transit employees in the sale of the transport system by one private employer to another," Mr. Dickinson said.

The BCE is at present carrying out a survey, following an offer to buy the service by Ivor W. Neil, a former BCE executive.

Chant Report

Gag Denied
By PetersonBut No Comment
Just the Same

The education department yesterday denied it had forbidden school superintendents to comment publicly on the Chant report.

But Greater Victoria superintendent John Gough declined to comment.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Irene Byers, president of the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council, called for more comment on the report from education experts.

NOT TO SPEAK

R. C. Gillie, S. J. Willis Junior High School principal, claimed Wednesday night in a talk to the Provincial Council of Women, that superintendents, employees of the department, had been told not to speak out about the royal commission report.

This, he said, would effectively stifle the most informed source of public information on education.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson yesterday denied there had been any directive from his department to that effect. He said the only restriction had been to direct superintendents to keep a departmental press of the report confidential when it was sent to them a few days before the report was made public.

STIMULATE DISCUSSION

He said the whole objective had been to release the report as early as possible to stimulate free discussion.

"We have encouraged discussion," he said. "People from our own department have been discussing the report at various meetings."

"There is not even an element of truth in the statement."

Mr. Peterson said that if any politics were being played in making such a statement, "they are not being played at this end but perhaps by the people who made the statement."

DENIAL REPEATED

The education minister later repeated his denial in the legislature after Tony Gargrave (CCF-Mackenzie) read selections from the Colonist report of the meeting where Mr. Gillie spoke.

Mrs. Byers said the Chant report "should be talked about a lot."

"I don't think there's any harm in school superintendents speaking up about it. The more we hear from experts, the more we understand, and they're the ones we want to hear," she said.

Mr. Gillie, elaborating last night on his earlier statements, said a number of district superintendents in various parts of the province have said they are not at liberty to discuss the Chant report because there is a suggestion it has "political significance."

Today
In House

Minister Kenneth Kiernan (BC—Chilliwack) will lead off debate in today's sitting of the legislature at 2 p.m. Other speakers will be George Hobbs (CCF—Revelstoke), John Tisdale (NDP—Nanaimo) and Mrs. Lois Hagen (CCF—Grand Forks-Greenwood).

Church Union
'Not Practical'

Union of Protestant and Roman Catholic churches is "not a practical possibility" at the present time, the primate of the Church of England in Canada said here yesterday.

Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Archbishop of Edmonton, visiting Victoria for several days, said he believes unity is "God's will" but it may be a "long and difficult process, the end of which we do not clearly see."

Circumstances outside the natural resistance of many church members who fear loss of freedom, spontaneity and variety, may force churches to unite, he said.

"We are living in a time not only of growth of communism but also a revival of the great religions of the East, Islam and Buddhism especially. The situation facing the Christian church at the present is that lukewarm Christians are attempting to compete with dedicated Communists and Moslems. And in matters of faith or science the lukewarm man always loses out," said Archbishop Clark.

"I believe anyone who is optimistic about the immediate future for Christianity is blind to the facts. We're in for a time of trouble and as Churchill said, 'Personally, I find that rather inspiring.'"

He sees hope for Christianity in the present generation of young men "more serious than my generation was. Only a few of them are dedicated Christians, but they are all searching and this searching, I believe, is the hope of the future."

Legislature Won't Hear
'Hallelujah Chorus'Peter Bruton's
Capital Notebook

AM-MEN: Social Credit backbenchers may not be referred to as the "Hallelujah Chorus" any more ... at least not in the legislative assembly.

That was the ruling of Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz yesterday following fairly widespread use of the term to signify the fact that backbenchers were forever praising the actions of the cabinet.

"This term 'Hallelujah Chorus' I don't believe is in good taste and I would ask that members refrain from using it further," said Mr. Shantz.

POTTED PALM: A scribbled note and a photograph from mortgage man Eric Charman tells of the joys of basking in Hawaii's sizzling sunshine.

WIDER FIELD: Say one thing for Premier Bennett, he's always optimistic. ... He took time off from provincial politics yesterday to give us his considered opinion or two on the upcoming by-election in the federal riding of Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Why those Tories," said the laughing ex-Tory. "They have more people trying to get that nomination than they'll have in total votes."

He was reminded that last election the Tories had a 14,000-vote edge and that Social Credit placed fourth out of four.

CUT DOWN: Firing of 12 newsmen from the Vancouver Province on Tuesday has been labelled in newspaper circles as "The St. Valentine's Day Massacre."

OUT OF PROPORTION: There's one CCFer who prefers B.C. to the CCF-governed province of Saskatchewan.

Tony Gargrave (CCF-Mackenzie) mentioned the province, as do a lot of his colleagues, to press home a point.

"Are you going to Saskatchewan?" asked Premier Bennett. "No, I like B.C. better," said Mr. Gargrave as the premier preened his feathers.

"I was in Regina once and with a climate like that they have to have a good government."

But the biggest laugh was still to come.

Party at McMorran's For Valentine's Day

A blazing log in the fireplace, and red tulips, white narcissus and daffodils, along with large red hearts, cupid and colored balloons decorated McMorran's Seaview Room, Cordova Bay for their Valentine Frolic, George Kraeling and his orchestra played for the large parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Effa, Mr. and Mrs. George Donaldson, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mooney, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Morris of Halifax, N.S. and Mr. and Mrs. William Smythe were in a party with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Criddle, to celebrate Mrs. Criddle's birthday.

Contract Valid When Signed

There are many different kinds of contracts and the parties in these contracts set the limiting principles and can make their own rules, well-known Victoria lawyer, Miss Connie Holmes, told members of University Women's Club of Victoria, Wednesday evening.

Laws to govern contracts and to protect the parties, and requirements needed before a valid contract is agreed upon, were described.

A contract becomes valid "when it is signed," the speaker said, "so let the buyer beware. He should not be ignorant of the 'property' he is acquiring."

Miss Holmes continued to explain ways in which contracts may be terminated and the legal aid services that exist in Victoria for people who cannot afford legal fees.

She was introduced by Mrs. A. W. Hobbs and thanked by Mrs. E. G. Tallman, Mrs. H. R. Turner presided and membership convener, Mrs. A. H. Gunning, introduced Mrs. C. W. Cropp and Mrs. P. Fraumeni. Refreshments were served by Miss Marilyn Berry and Mrs. A. B. Bell, assisted by Mrs. P. A. Coombs, Mrs. P. G. Murray, Mrs. V. W. Smith and Mrs. J. C. Williams.

Magic Circle Guest Night

The Victoria Magic Circle held a guest night recently in place of the regular meeting, at the home of Ernst and Gayle Eckdahl, 2649 Asquith Street.

Mr. Ernest Crookford was master of ceremonies. The following magicians entertained, Mr. Owen Fowler, Mr. Reg Thurber, Mr. Art Curtis, Mr. Ernest Eckdahl assisted by his wife Gayle, and Mr. Ernest Crookford assisted by his wife Audrey.

The guests also enjoyed an unusual and different performance when Mrs. Audrey Crookford performed her magic sand paintings.

The following is the list of guests and performers: Mrs. B. Watson, Mr. Lon Chaney, Mr. D. Beulah, Mr. and Mrs. J. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. E. Munro, Mr. and Mrs. W. Cauldwell, Mr. and Mrs. R. Norlin, Mr. and Mrs. D. Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. B. Whitten, Mr. and Mrs. R. Sims, Mr. and Mrs. O. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. E. Crookford, Mr. and Mrs. A. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. R. Thurber, Mr. and Mrs. E. Eckdahl.

"SHE LOOKS OLD!" IS THAT WHAT THEY'RE SAYING ABOUT YOU?

No woman wants to look old, but so many do—because of dry skin caused by harsh weather, indoor heat, low-fat diets. That's why you should know about POND'S CREAM. This famous cream contains Allantoin—a substance that goes to work in just 10 minutes to repair skin robbed of natural moisture. Allantoin gently disperses lifeless surface cells... speeds penetration of Pond's rich moisturized lanolin to thirsty tissues far below. Almost overnight, dry lines, skininess disappear... your skin looks soft, smooth, young again! Use POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM regularly. Buy it in the jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold. Adv.

Paris' Chanel Suits

A two-piece suit in white and beige wool trimmed with red and blue wool braid is this offering from Chanel's 1961 Spring-Summer collection. The buttons are gold.

Saddle stitching is a distinctive note in this two-piece Chanel suit of dark blue wool, popular in the Paris showing. The bow is white silk. (AP photofax).

Home from Holiday

After a six weeks holiday in Florida which included visits to Clearwater, Tampa, St. Petersburg and Miami Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Colin B. Mooney of Orchard Avenue, arrived home on Monday.

Luncheon Party

Mrs. Harold Menzies entertained in her Henderson Road home at a buffet luncheon recently in honor of the executive members of the Lady Laurier Club of Oak Bay. Mrs. J. T. Jones, president, assisted the hostess. The luncheon table was attractively decorated with spring flowers.

Arrangements were made for the annual meeting and a luncheon which will be held in the private dining room of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Feb. 24. The president and members of the executive will receive guests in the main lounge previous to the luncheon.

Other luncheon guests were Mrs. P. A. Gibbs, Mrs. George Gregory, Mrs. Thomas Lumsden, Mrs. Geoffrey Ellis, Mrs. A. MacDonald, Mrs. H. Lauder Ramsay, and Mrs. L. G. Hamilton.

Will New York Be Able to Lure Yves Saint-Laurent from Paris?

PARIS (UPI) — Paris' loss may be New York's gain in the world of fashion.

Friends of Yves Saint-Laurent have said that the wonder boy designer of the House of Dior has received "alluring" offers to create women's clothes in New York.

Although the 25-year-old designer was not available to comment on the reports, friends said he was reluctant to leave the French fashion headquarters off the Champs Elysees where he has been regally successful.

The U.S. offers apparently stemmed from New York fashion quarters aware of the difficult situation the frail, bespectacled designer has found himself in since he was released from the army because of medical reasons last November.

When Saint-Laurent was drafted last September, the House of Dior replaced him as chief designer with Marc Bohan, 35. Saint-Laurent remained a member of the establishment, technically on "extended leave of absence."

TIGHT COVER

Soft cookies keep in a container with a tight fitting cover. If the cookies start to dry out, add a piece of apple or bread to the container, replacing it often. Crisp cookies should be kept in a container with a loose fitting cover. If they soften they can be heated in a very slow oven, preheated to three hundred degrees F., about five minutes before serving.

The fashion house thought Saint-Laurent would be in the army for more than two years, but he suffered a nervous collapse and was released.

When he returned to Paris after a long convalescence, Saint-Laurent found his former assistant the new toast of the gilded fashion world showings.

Bohan's "slim-line" collection in the mid-January spring showings caused considerable enthusiasm.

Saint-Laurent has been thrown into a quandry because the House of Dior has decided to retain Bohan as chief designer for the August winter showings.

WMS Marks 70th Year

Members of Centennial Women's Missionary Society celebrated their 70th birthday on Monday. Worship was taken by members of the Evening Auxiliary. Mrs. J. Garner in her anniversary remarks recalled the fact of looking forward rather than backward as we go into the new organization of United Church Women, early in 1962.

Mrs. L. McCaw presided in the absence of president Mrs. M. Waldern, and reports of birthday cake was cut by Presbyterian were given by Mrs. J. Alton.

Mrs. E. Jamieson and Mrs. F. Decker.

Two fitting solos were given by Mrs. H. Cashman accompanied by Mrs. S. Parsons.

A history of 70 years of activity, prepared by Mrs. J. Alton and Mrs. F. Decker, was read by Mrs. Decker.

Following the meeting a social hour was held, tea being prepared by members of the Patrician WA Group.

A delicious lunch was convened by Mrs. W. Martin and the birthday cake was cut by Mrs. J. Alton.

Wilkin, Mrs. D. Bennett, Mrs. M. Shaw and the Misses Lucille and Ellen Hogg, and Helen Poulsen.

MIXING

When one beats a cake the ingredients are rapidly blended together with a vertical circular motion to enclose as much air as possible. A slotted spoon should be used for beating the mixture. When two previously beaten mixtures are folded in together, heap the lighter on the heavier mixture. Use a spoon or a rubber scraper. When the mixtures are heaped together lift the lower mixture gently, by a series of downward strokes, and place it over the top mixture. Repeat this motion until the two mixtures are well blended. During the folding process as much air as possible should be enclosed into the mixtures.

VON Rummage Sale Coming Up

Everything from model hats and frocks to kitchen utensils and "objets d'art" will be among the masses of donations being loaded onto the truck for the VON rummage sale, Saturday, March 4, in the Victoria Ballroom. Resolutions

Council Asks Unemployed Medical Costs Be Resumed

Winding up a two day annual meeting, Provincial Council of Women presented resolutions to Premier W. A. Bennett and members of the cabinet at the legislative buildings last evening.

They urged the provincial government to resume payment of medical costs for all unemployed employable persons.

They also asked that single persons who now receive $66 per month social assistance allowance be permitted to retain without deduction from such basic social assistance the sum of $10 from any sum they earn in any month, plus 25 per cent of the balance of the total sum earned, and that married couples receiving $103.90 per month basic social assistance allowance be permitted to retain without deduction from such social assistance allowance the sum of $20 from any sum they earn in any month plus 25 per cent of the balance of the total sum so earned.

Other resolutions were: That the Provincial Council of Women support the brief presented to the provincial government by the Association for Mentally Retarded Children in October, 1960.

Request the provincial government to take definite and immediate action to rectify the critical situation in the public welfare service.

Request the provincial government to support any request from municipal governments for funds for an extended program of subsidized homemaker and housekeeper services.

Urges upon the attention of the provincial government the need of resident psychiatric clinic facilities in the Okanagan Valley. Furthermore, the early release of the report of the survey made by the American Psychiatric Association—known as the Ross Report—in August, 1959, is anticipated.

That the provincial government prepare regulations by appropriate authorities with the object of improving both the standards of air purity and of extending the jurisdiction of the control and inspection authorities. It would be desirable that adequate amounts of money be made available for research needed to place the foregoing on a sound and practical basis.

That the penalty imposed upon any minor guilty of purchasing liquor be increased.

That Section 55 of the Public adding "or spouses" after the words "owner-elect".

That the Provincial Council of Women recommend that the provincial government consider increased grants to school boards and other groups offering English classes for New Canadians, in order that fees for these classes may be reduced.

That the provincial government be asked to explore ways and means by which fees for English classes might be waived for indigent students; that the term indigent be re-defined to broaden the base on which such fees might be waived.

DOMESTIC
That the provincial government abolish the Social Security Aid Tax, known as Sales Tax, from gas and electricity used for domestic purposes.

Request the provincial government to remove tax on fuel oil presently levied under B.C. Fuel Oil Tax Act and regulations thereto.

That in view of recent scientific findings regarding the dangers of using certain X-ray machines, the government of B.C. be urged to take steps to prohibit the use of shoe fitting X-ray machines.

That the proper authorities be urged to see that the safety barriers on the Okanagan Lake Bridge be moved to such a position that a motorist, not being aware of the impending danger, cannot after crashing through the safety barrier be installed.

That the Provincial Council of Women recommend that the provincial government con-

Accidents Main 'Killer'

Accidents kill more people in the age group of one to 45 years than total lost through combined toll of "killer" diseases of cancer, polio, tuberculosis and heart disease. So reported Mrs. G. W. Kisicki, Provincial Council of Women's representative to the British Columbia Safety Council at morning session of annual meeting held in the Empress Hotel yesterday.

Quoting statistics she noted, "Annual average number of deaths from accidental causes is 1,124. At this rate, population of a moderately sized city could be lost in a few years."

Cost of hospital care for victims of accidents exceeded $5,000,000 annually, Mrs. Kisicki told provincial council.

"This is equivalent to cost of a 933-bed hospital that is fully occupied all year round."

As an example, in 1959 there were 1,030 accidental deaths, 28,280 accident cases were hospitalized and bed-days amounted to 340,268.

"Major increases in deaths due to accidents were attributed to falls, poisoning and outdoor fatalities."

In contrast, there was a decrease in deaths due to cars, other transportation and fires.

In spite of this, accidents were responsible for one-third to one-half of all deaths.

B.C. Safety Council, reported Mrs. Kisicki, was started in 1956, and is first group in Canada to cover all fields of safety.

Summing up, "We have no way of knowing how many accidents are prevented or how many lives are saved. This is one drawback in our program which includes safety educational work in traffic, occupational (including farm), home and family, water and recreation."

Lieutenant-Governor Will Travel to Duncan

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Peakes will go to Duncan on Friday evening, Feb. 24 to attend the Duncan Musical Club's production of "The Mikado" at the Cowichan High School.

Other patrons are Mr. Robert M. Strachan, MLA and Mrs. Strachan, Mayor Jack Dobson and Mrs. Dobson, Reeve and Mrs. Donald Morton and Sir Philip and Lady Livingston.

The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Peakes have expressed a wish to meet the cast after the performance. A reception to be given by the municipality of North Cowichan will be held at the Silver Bridge Inn for the Lietenant-Governor and Mrs. Peakes.

Performances of "The Mikado" will also be given on Thursday, Feb. 23 and Saturday, Feb. 25.

Lake Hill Women's Institute will meet on Monday, Feb. 20, at 2 p.m. in the Quadra Street Hall. Dr. Violet McNaughton will convene the Adelaide Hoodless day program. Members are reminded of the collection for Saanich Welfare.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a problem that's so weird he's afraid to tell anyone.

Recently he dreamed he took a bite out of a bar of soap. For several hours after awakening he felt nauseated and couldn't eat. Last week he dreamed he had his appendix removed and when he woke up he not only felt as though he had been through surgery, but he looked like it.

Last night he dreamed someone slammed the car door on his foot. This morning he's limping and swears he's in physical pain. Is this possible? I say no. After all nothing actually happened to his foot. What should he do—see a doctor? It all sounds so foolish. Please help.—SHOOK.

Dear Shook: It is possible that your husband is in pain and he should see a doctor—not a foot doctor but a head doctor. An imagined pain can be just as severe as a "real" one.

Since your husband is so good at dreaming it's too bad he doesn't treat himself to something better than an appendectomy or a smashed foot.

Dear Ann Landers: Aren't you supposed to help people get along better? I think you try to start trouble.

How dare you call a sensible father a "sourpuss" just because he told his 9-month-old blabber-mouth kid to shut up during dinner? Don't you know that the number of juvenile delinquents is staggering—and it's getting worse all the time? These kids got delinquent at home because nobody taught them respect for authority. If more parents had the courage to stand up to their kids we wouldn't be faced with this national problem.

I see nothing wrong with a father saying to his children "shut up at the dinner table."

You're here to eat." Every family should say grace before meals and that should be the end of the talking.—JUST AMAZED.

Dear Just: As you see it, this is what should take place at America's dinner tables.

The father speaks: "Lord, we thank thee for this food and for the numerous blessings which you have given us this day. Now, kids shut up and eat. That's what you're at the table for." (End of conversation.)

Sorry, Dad, but I think mealtime should provide a chance for the kids to feed their spirits as well as their bodies. It ought to be a pleasant period of enjoying one another's company. In my book, food that it eaten alone or in silence may as well be hay.

Dear Ann Landers: I married a man who seemed like a go-getter. He hit a few bad breaks in business and I decided he'd never make the grade. I divorced him after his second business flop because I didn't want to scratch through life like my mother did.

Eight years have passed and he has hit it big in several oil deals. He's married to a mousey little thing with no zing. I could do a lot for him. How does a gal win back her first love?—DELORES.

Dear Delores: Forget it. Funny how he hit it big right after he unloaded you. Maybe that zingless little mouse is just what he needed.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If you need for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Teenage Unemployment A Problem Says Speaker

Decrease in the number of teenage girls in the labor force and the marked rise in the numbers of mature women holding jobs, is one of the problems the Women's Bureau in the Federal Department of Labor is concerned with today.

These two groups may seem totally different, nevertheless they are related, Miss Marion Royce, head of the bureau, at Ottawa, told a representative group of Victoria women, Monday night, at a meeting sponsored by the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club.

Sobering aspect of the interrelations at present, she pointed out, is one of sheer job opportunities.

"The rate of unemployment among teen-agers is already alarmingly high and we have only begun to cope with the 'bulge' from increased birth rate of the war years and since. This influx of youth could mean that older women may have to withdraw from the labor market."

The older woman, re-entering the labor force, faces difficulties, but "if she had a satisfactory work experience in her earlier life, she has an advantage over the person for whom paid work has no meaning."

The problem of the teenage girl is "principally one of transition from school to work. If she has some training for a field of work in which there is a demand, the way is smoother, provided she begins work under competent supervision."

Without any special preparation for work and with little formal education "the first available job is likely to be the answer."

It serves no purpose to keep the teenager in school where there is often a lack of suitable curriculum, the speaker believed. Yet, when they do leave school they are often lost sight of.

"We need accessible counselling services," she urged, "perhaps a system of registration that would keep track of them and also some provision of training on the job for them."

Miss Royce cited the day-release system in England, where a day a week in school complements experience in paid work. Another idea she felt "might be a school-work program that would help bridge the gap from school to a place in the labor force."

Counselling and training facilities were also important for the older woman re-entering the labor force, Miss Royce believed. She also urged that "more thought be given to education of the woman nearing or past 30."

"Married young, her children have reached a stage which frees her to think more broadly of her place in the community, either as paid worker or volunteer. If she has not married she is likely now to be interested in professional development or, perhaps, a new field of work."

Tarts Ideal Dessert

By LOUISE MOORE

What are we having for dessert—a question asked so many times and, if it's for a gala dinner, you have to think twice before you decide.

Nesselrode tarts like these meet all requirements, since they are especially light, being made of fluffy lemon-chiffon pie filling mix. Whipped cream and a garnish of shaved chocolate—or a candied cherry—completes a pretty dessert picture.

NESSERLODE TARTS

Place 1 package lemon chiffon pie filling mix in a large deep mixing bowl. Add 1/2 cup boiling water—and I do mean boiling—and mix thoroughly. Add 1/2 cup cold water. Then beat vigorously with rotary beater at high speed of electric mixer until mixture is very foamy. Takes about one minute's beating.

Add 1/2 cup sugar, beat vigorously until filling stands in peaks—takes about three minutes' beating. Do not overbeat. Fold in 1/2 cup chopped, mixed, candied fruits and 1 tsp. rum extract.

CHILL

Four into baked tart shells that are light and flaky. Chill until set—about 2 hours.

Before serving, garnish with whipped cream and sprinkle with shaved or grated chocolate or finely cut candied fruits for a sparkling festive look.

Perfect to serve for a Sunday dinner of roast pork or dressed tenderloins with whipped potatoes, buttered broccoli, candied squash and whatever you wish for a salad—jellied tomato and celery ring would be a good choice.

'Executive' Ills Killed Many an Old Pharaoh

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI)—A British archaeological expedition opened the fabulous tomb of Pharaoh Tut-ankhamen 38 years ago yesterday and the world envied the ancient rulers of Egypt for their colossal wealth. But medical scientists have just reported that life in the palaces along the Nile was not all peaches and cream. There were quite a few aches and pains around. The head that wore the crown may well have throbbed with migraine. And more than one Pharaoh probably sat on a pillowed throne to ease the stabbing pains of rheumatism or lumbago.

Scientists, using X-rays and other techniques such as reconstructing mummified material, "diagnosed" the maladies of men and women who lived 4,000 years ago. They reached the conclusion that ancient Egypt was not only one of the cradles of civilization, but its inhabitants suffered even during the Old Testament times from many of the ailments now regarded as "modern."

CONGENITAL DISEASE

A paper to be published by the Royal Society of Medicine said one mummy had arthritis of the spine. The mummy of a priestess of Thebes showed signs of congenital lung disease.

The scientific studies indicated that the Pharaohs suffered from the degenerative type of hardening of the arteries which often leads today to that killer of the busy executive — coronary thrombosis.

GOUT, SMALLPOX

Other examinations of mummies and mummified material disclosed evidence of gout, pneumonia, appendicitis, gall bladder and kidney stones, leprosy and smallpox.

Cancer was probably rare in ancient Egypt. But this was attributed to the fact that few people lived long enough to develop it since the life expectancy at that time was only 45 years.

Red Solution to Congo:

Confusion, Chaos

ANTOINE GIZENGA

New Puppet Will Need Massive Kremlin Aid

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LONDON (AP)—When the last window has been shattered in Belgian diplomatic missions, Moscow will still have to face sober reality in the Congo.

The former Belgian colony astride the Equator is not a Korea with a Communist power on its border. It is not a Hungary, where Soviet tanks could bull their way to control, or a Finland or a Poland.

The Soviet Union, in trying to set up Antoine Gizenga as its puppet ruler of the Congo, is dealing with one of the remaining primitive areas of the world—and a large one.

DISEMBODIED

The smart cities built by the Belgians, the rich copper and diamond mines, the vast plantations now disintegrating, camouflage a tribal society about as receptive to Communism as it would be to a revived slave trade.

Perhaps 80 per cent of the 14,000,000 Congolese recognize no more formal authority than their tribal chiefs and headmen despite eight months of independence from Belgian rule.

To believe that a handful of leftists like Gizenga could swing the huge, chaotic area into the Communist camp without massive military assistance is sheer fantasy.

NO CLEAR MANDATE

The combinations of parties that finally emerged from the parliamentary elections in 1960 made it obvious that no Congolese leader had anything like a clear mandate. Patrice Lumumba emerged as the top man because he was the most persuasive orator, the most politically minded and the fastest man with a trade.

It now is clear that Lumumba, even in 1960, had notions of cementing his leadership with outside aid which his supporters would have rejected instantly had they known of his ideas. The Congolese, despite the excesses of last July and August, were not anti-white or anti-Belgian on a broad scale. They were opposed mainly to outside domination of any kind.

EMBOLDENED

Nor did the mass of the Congolese people feel strongly about a unitary state or a federation. Millions would never move farther than the next hill in their lifetimes. It was Lumumba — inspired by his Communist and left-wing advisers and emboldened by brief visits with a few African nationalist leaders outside the Congo — who insisted on severing the ties with Belgium. And even Lumumba recognized the need for Belgian advisers and technicians; his government was still inviting them back when Kasavubu deposed him.

CLASSIC CHAOS

The Soviet move for the United Nations and the remaining Belgians to quit the Congo within a month can only be a manoeuvre to deprive the anti-Communist governments of the only experts and technicians they can rely on, and to create complete chaos—the classic prologue to Communist infiltration.

Store Sales Hit Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Chain store sales reached an all-time high in 1960, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday. Sales totalled $3,441,775,000, a 4.9-per-cent increase over 1959's peak high of $3,280,263,000.

CITY SIZE

The United States has about 50 cities with populations exceeding 250,000, excluding suburbs.

To January

Legion Asks Retroactive Pension Hike

OTTAWA (CP)—The Royal Canadian Legion yesterday asked that the 20-per-cent increase in war disability pensions be made retroactive to January of this year.

Under terms of legislation approved in principle this week by the Commons, the increase become effective in the month after the legislation receives royal assent. Thus the earliest possible date for the increase would be March. The Legion request was contained in a brief read to the Commons veterans affairs committee by Dominion Secretary Don Thomson of Ottawa.

William Benedickson (L-Kenora-Rainy River) said the clause setting debate for the pension increases was an "unprecedented pressure clause."

He noted that December, 1957, legislation increasing pensions had been made retroactive to July 1 that year.

The Legion congratulated the government on the increase but said they should also apply to the one group expected dependent parents of disability pensioners. The increase in this group's case is 12½ per cent.

Western

RED CEDAR

Bevel SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available—a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

THE LUMBER

Western red cedar lumber is noted for its exceptional durability, light weight and beautiful color, ranging from almost pure white to reddish brown heartwood. It is very easily worked, is free from pitch, takes and holds stains, paints and enamels excellently, and is superior for gluing. Because of these qualities, Western red cedar is especially adaptable for use as bevel siding for quality homes.

DURABILITY

Western red cedar is one of the most durable species known. Its heartwood is highly resistant to decay, and can be counted on for long and worthy service where conditions favoring decay prevail.

WEATHERING CHARACTERISTICS

Left exposed without paint or other protective finishes, Western red cedar weathers to an intriguing grey color having little or no sheen. It is one of the most stable species of lumber, having very little tendency to cup and pull loose from fastenings when exposed to the weather.

INSULATING QUALITIES

Western red cedar has the highest insulating value of all commonly used soft woods—another point in its favor as siding, and of particular importance when used as roof decking.

For Odd Job Around House:

Don't Pay Bill at Once!

MEA Warns Of Liability Under Act

Did you hold back 15 per cent of the bill for 40 days the last time you had a plumbing company send out a man to repair your drains or a construction firm send out a carpenter to build a cupboard?

It's your legal responsibility as the "owner" under the Mechanics' Lien Act to do so unless you are sure that the company's workman who did the job has been paid. Otherwise, the workman may file a lien against the property concerned to recover his wages.

This was pointed out yesterday during a meeting of the legislature's standing committee on labor which heard a brief from the B.C. section of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association.

SUB-CONTRACTORS

The group represents about 800 members from among manufacturers, distributors, suppliers, contractors and sub-contractors.

The association was opposing any move that would limit provisions of the act to workers, removing from sub-contractors and materials suppliers the right to use of liens to secure payment from owners when contractors did not pay their bills.

During discussion of the association's brief, it was pointed out by Harry McKay (L—Farnie) that under the present act the owner is required to withhold 15 per cent of the fee to the contractor until he is sure that the contractor has paid his bills in connection with the specific job done for the owner—or up to a maximum of 40 days.

BIG, SMALL JOBS

Otherwise a lien may be filed against the owner by the workman, the sub-contractor or supplier who has not been paid by the contractor.

The principle applies to the small job in the home as well as to major contracting undertakings, Mr. McKay said.

"But I'd bet that very few people are aware of this responsibility and in most cases, if they're dealing with a reputable firm, they just pay the bill in full when the job is done," he said.

'No Panic' On Bonds

Premier Bennett yesterday denied a suggestion by Tony Garrahy (CCF—MacKenzie) that the government would be in trouble if interest rates went up and everybody tried to cash in their party bonds at the same time.

"We wouldn't be in trouble at all. That is the benefit of being a debt-free province," the premier said.

Space Ball Missing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States "lost" a little satellite in the blackness of space yesterday, but still succeeded for the first time in orbiting an object with a solid-fuel rocket.

Officials of National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the fourth-stage casing of the rocket went into orbit ranging between 410 and 1,610 statute miles from the earth.

They said it was "probable" that the 12-foot polka-dot sphere, the shot's payload, also had gone into orbit but could not be found because its radio tracking equipment failed. Tracking stations were searching for it. All four stages fired as planned, and the burned-out fourth stage became a tiny new satellite.

'Heroic' Indian-Killers Modern-Day Liabilities

DR. BROCK CHISHOLM

VANCOUVER (CP)—The "Indian killer" shouldn't be made a hero to our children, Dr. Brock Chisholm, former World Health Organization director-general, said here Wednesday.

"I have found it difficult to explain to audiences in Africa why we set up as heroes those who were most noted for killing Indians. This is certainly not the type of 'hero' who will be significant in the future, so why teach this to our children?"

He said the whole basis of morality and conscience is changing and unless humans are able to change their old concepts, disaster lay ahead.

'Purely for Information'

Hooson Sought CCF Pamphlets

City welfare administrator William Hooson did ask the CCF for some of its pamphlets on services available from the provincial welfare department, he granted yesterday, but "purely as a matter of information on what's going on in the community."

David Bayrett (CCF—Dewdney) said in the legislature Wednesday that a Victoria welfare office had thought the pamphlets so good that it had ordered 25 more. Welfare Minister Wesley Black had criticized the CCF for distributing the pamphlets.

ALL SOURCES

Mr. Hooson said he had asked for some copies because "we like to know what information is going out from all sources. We treated it just the same as all the other information we seek from various sources—such as the federal government, for instance."

Protest Arrest

Sect Women Disrobe In Jail Cell

TRAIL (CP)—Two Doukhobor women, members of the radical Sons of Freedom sect, stripped in a police cell Thursday, protesting their arrest on an arson charge.

They were Mrs. Martha Hadikin of Krestova and Mrs. Mary Astoroff of Grand Forks.

The women are charged with Mrs. Astoroff's husband Peter in the burning of a home at Grand Forks a month ago. Police said the two women disrobed as they were being served breakfast. The act is common among the British Columbia Doukhobor sect as a form of protest.

Memoirs Of Maynard Auctioneers Would Be "Best Seller"

The founder, Geo. H. Maynard, was a maker of shoes, "Back in an Hour" was always on his doph. He was always at an Auction. Friends suggested he might as well go into the Auction business, and with his entire assets of $68.00 he bought all of the furnishings of a defunct hotel. This was the first Maynard Auction — June 21, 1902.

$150 Gold Thimble Found In Secret Drawer

An Antique Fall-Front Desk brought $175.00 at a Maynard Auction. Months later the buyer took it apart and found an Antique Gold Thimble in a secret drawer.

Postage-Size Pub Auctioned for $225,000

One of the highlights of the career of Maynard's Victoria Manager, Roy Ashworth, was his auction of a small valuable situated English Pub for almost a quarter million dollars. "It turned out that two Distillers both wanted it badly," Mr. Ashworth stated.

Man and Wife Bid Against Each Other

President of Maynard & Sons, A. R. Roberts, smiled when he recalled the time a husband and wife were trying to bid against each other. "Husbands and wives should stay together," Mr. Roberts announced as he stopped the Auction. Replied the husband, "Did you ever try minding your own business?" Seems the couple had recently been divorced.

Old Whaling Fleet Most Difficult Task

The Auction of the obsolete West Coast fleet of Whalers was Maynard's most difficult task. One sold for $355.00.

Man of Many Cloths

Then there's the well-known Maynard Vancouver Auctioneer whose partner of many years just discovered the other day that said Auctioneer had a "Caterpillar."

Real Estate Auctioned For $60

The Auctioneer, after a $4,000 opening bid, proceeded to take bid of 41, 42, and on up to $6,100. At this point a man walked onto the property, heard the Auctioneer ask for $2, and he bid $2. Up went the bidding. 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68 . . . "Going once, twice, third and last time, sold for $6,800," said the Maynard Auctioneer. "Sixty-eight hundred!" said the late-arriving bidder. "I thought you meant sixty-eight dollars."

The man who bid $6,700 took the property for $6,800, and the little old man walked away shaking his head.

Division of Profits at Maynard's

Around the turn of the century, if Maynard's had a "good day," say a $50.00 commission, the two partners would take $20.00 each and leave $10 in the till for expenses.

Goya Sketches Auctioned For $18, Now Worth $400,000

An insignificant-looking sketch book at a Maynard Auction attracted a newspaper reporter. He shook his head when asked to bid $18.00. They were knocked down at $18.00. "Three years' research and a trip to Goya's homeland, Spain, proved the sketches to be worth $400,000."

Did Horst Koehler Own The Picture?

Well-known Broadcasting Executive, Horst Koehler, was understandably elated over buying an oil painting for about $100 because he felt it was worth far more (possibly $1,500). Mr. Jackson, Maynard's Vice-President, had some fun with Mr. Koehler when he phoned and asked for the immediate return of the painting. In his excitement Mr. Koehler forgot to sign his cheque!

Suggested development of the area between Government Street and the Inner Harbor as a cultural centre for Victoria with the old York Theatre as its hub found little favor last night.

Both Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell and Jack Barracough, president of Victoria Symphony Society, turned thumbs down on a suggestion by Kenneth McAllister, president of Victoria Conservation Council.

The York Theatre on Government Street, opposite the Victoria Ballroom, has been vacant for some years.

But Ald. Dowell and Mr. Barracough pointed out that cost of renovation would be too high, the area is not attractive and parking is restricted.

Mr. Barracough, himself, has suggested a similar development for the Cathedral Hill area and the Royal Theatre.

Quebeckers Favor Lotteries

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says readers participating in a poll conducted through its columns have voted overwhelmingly in favor of a provincial lottery to aid education and hospitals.

Of 98,501 ballots counted since the poll started Feb. 4, 98,332 favored a lottery and 149 opposed. The newspaper said returns are not complete.

Lotteries are banned by the Criminal Code.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

Frequently, performer considers himself a better judge of material than a producer, director or agent. Such was the case with Joan Collins when Producer Jerry Wald sought her last year for a role in his film version of D. H. Lawrence's "Sons and Lovers."

Miss Collins turned up her nose at the project. She informed Wald she was not impressed with the script or the film itself.

Joan was so adamant in her refusal that she was put on suspension, meaning no pay.

What happened? England's Mary Ure took the role. The picture went on to become one of 1960's outstanding achievements and is now strong in Academy Award consideration for almost everyone concerned — actors, director and producer.

Robust Melodrama

'Down in Valley' Adroitly Staged

By BERT BINNY

There were very few empty seats in the S. J. Willis Junior High School auditorium for the opening last night of the Victoria University Music Club's annual concert.

The feature of the program which occupied the whole of the second half was Kurt Weill's operetta "Down in the Valley," a sombre little offering lying midway between the robust "western" and out-and-out melodrama.

Musically this was fine and it was adroitly staged. Ken Oliphant made an excellent "Leader" and Irene Harris, as Jenny Parsons, was outstanding in that she contrived to create a thoroughly acceptable character as well as to sing.

GOOD ACCOUNT
William Ritchie, as Brack Weaver, was not too convincing; with somewhat more abandon Robin Estlin's "Thomas Bouche" would have been excellent. Patrick Duff and Shaun Erb gave good account of themselves in small parts.

The best passage in the production came with the "meeting" but, in general, more attention could have been advantageously paid to acting—as distinct from singing—and to the handling of the chorus.

The men's choir opened the evening and were particularly fine with their "Steal Away." Pianist Kenneth Johnson and violinist Don Kissinger were enthusiastically received on the strength of valuable contributions to the program.

LONDON (UPI)—Britain yesterday disclosed plans to boost its guided-missile destroyer fleet to six and to add a U.S.-designed "lighter and faster" anti-submarine torpedo to its armaments.

Lord Carrington, First Lord of the Admiralty, said the navy was ordering two more anti-submarine destroyers.

But he refused to say whether Britain had any hard plans to order additional nuclear-powered submarines.

Seat Shuffle Alberta Issue

EDMONTON (UPI)—Premier E. C. Manning's powerful Social Credit government hinted yesterday that it would introduce two measures in the second session of the 14th provincial legislature that most observers believe will spark widespread controversy.

One of the moves deals with legislation which would result in a general redistribution of electoral representation in the House. The speech from the Throne made specific reference to such a move.

No direct reference was made to industrial taxation but the speech mentioned possible legislation aimed at a broadening of the tax base and a more equitable basis for taxation of real property.

CURBING DEBT
The government is expected to concentrate its efforts on curbing the public debt while at the same time promoting expansion and expenditure by private industry.

The speech from the Throne suggested a new plan of financing schools, aimed at distributing the burden of school costs more equitably.

The speech suggested that laws governing the exploration and production of oil may

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—The Ancaster High School board has no plans to "intervene in any way" in the killing of cats and chickens for biology purposes. Revenge in Acid

Girl's Death Spurs Attack

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Crown witnesses told a tragic series of events Wednesday following the guilty plea of a 46-year-old mother accused of wounding a prominent Nipigon, Ont., doctor with acid.

Mrs. Inga Santala of Nipigon was remanded until Tuesday after she pleaded guilty in Ontario Supreme Court to wounding a prominent Nipigon, Ont., doctor with acid.

A physician testified that the victim's vision has been badly impaired and he will require five years of skin-graft treatment.

Dr. E. R. Somerleigh, victim of the attack, did not testify for the crown. He has ment.

been undergoing treatment in a Toronto hospital since the attack Nov. 4 after a night meeting of the town council.

A physician testified that the victim's vision has been badly impaired and he will require five years of skin-graft treatment.

Dr. E. R. Somerleigh, victim of the attack, did not testify for the crown. He has ment.

Psychiatrist Dr. Kenneth Gray of Toronto, testified that Mrs. Santala was obsessed with the belief that Dr. Somerleigh had neglected to give proper care to her 10-year-old daughter who died more than four years ago.

Dr. Gray told the court Mrs. Santala is in need of at least two years' psychiatric treatment.

"REALITY" IN MIND
Defence counsel Alfred Petrone of Port Arthur summed up the crown testimony by saying it was a "reality" in Mrs. Santala's mind that a wrong had been done to her.

Inspector J. L. Needham questioned Mrs. Santala Nov. 8, told her she would be charged and cautioned her. She told of buying six ounces of nitric acid at a Fort William drug store and showed a receipt.

She told of seeing the doctor's parked car while she was shopping and knew this would be her opportunity and went home for the acid. She returned and crouched in the right rear seat for 10 minutes before the doctor got in.

AVOIDED EYES
The police officer said: "Mrs. Santala told me: 'I worked just the way I planned. I aimed at his cheek. I didn't want it to go in his eyes.'"

Both Lakehead and Nipigon health boards heard the case of the death of Mrs. Santala's daughter and no blame was placed on the doctor.

Hit, Robbed Victim Says

Two men who pleaded guilty Wednesday to a joint charge of robbery with violence or threats were remanded yesterday to Feb. 23 for probation reports and sentence after court heard testimony from their victim.

Oril Cass, 27, and John Gayland Day, 19, both of no fixed address, were accused of robbing William Campbell, 34, of 174 Joseph, of less than $5 as he was about to enter his car on Johnson Street early Wednesday morning.

Mr. Campbell told the court the two pulled him from the car and, when he ran across the road the "one in the red jacket" tripped him.

Then the two took him into a parking lot where the red-jacketed one said "I've got a gun" and pushed something into his ribs.

The other accused, said Campbell, punched him in the stomach and took off his glasses, and threatened him against calling for police. They took his wallet and removed all the money in it—it turned out to be $3—then after another threat ran away towards Yates.

Both accused denied any violence or threats.

Lack of car insurance landed an Oak Bay youth in difficulties in two Greater Victoria police courts yesterday, when he wound up with jail sentences totalling 46 days.

Winston Roger Boulter, 19, of 2727 Cavendish, pleaded guilty in city police court to three charges of driving without insurance, and one of using an insurance certificate not his own.

His record showed two previous no-insurance convictions since last Nov. 1.

"It is hard to imagine a more flagrant disregard for the law," Magistrate William Ostler said.

Sentences were five days on the first charge, seven on the second, 10 on the third and 10 on the fourth charge, not concurrent. He was prohibited from driving for one year.

Accused appeared in Saanich court in the afternoon—again charged with driving without insurance.

"I am astonished at your contempt for the law," said the magistrate. "You will be sentenced to 14 days—consecutive."

In Saanich court yesterday Arthur Thomas Reeve, 1270 Bay, was committed for trial in higher court on a charge of breaking, entering and theft Dec. 26 at the Shelbourne Plaza drug store. The formal commitment, with bail set at $3,500, followed preliminary hearing held in two recent sessions of the court.

Rare, Royal Swans Enjoy Life

Only pair of European ornamental royal mute swans owned by a private collector in B.C. are enjoying life, liberty and the pursuit of food in a private pool on a farm in North Cowichan. They are owned by Mrs. Paul Chapman. (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Cowichan 'Immigrants'

Slapstick Residents Roll, Waddle, Belch

Is School Site Health Hazard?

DUNCAN—Cowichan school board was told during a stormy session last night that 12 local doctors have signed a petition which alleges that the site for a new $252,000 school is a health hazard.

The board tabled the petition without action and indicated it would go ahead with construction at the controversial site on the strength of provincial government approval which has already been granted.

HOT DENIALS

C. P. Deykin, spokesman for a group of residents in the district and the man who presented the petition, drew hot denials from one trustee whom he said that school board members had misrepresented the status of another school site.

Mr. Deykin charged that the board had made false statements some years ago to the effect that the provincial government had approved the site of Alexander School whose grounds were covered during recent floods.

CITIZEN ADVISE

He said a government official told him later that the board had been advised against the Alexander site.

"We have on file a letter from the department of education giving authority to the board to build Alexander school on that site," retorted Trustee Wilf Peck.

WHALE OIL

Sperm oil, obtained from the sperm whale, is a light, clear liquid wax used for lubricating delicate instruments.

DUNCAN—A pair of "immigrants" with slapstick ways and a "Rule Britannia" waddle are this district's latest contribution to the Canadian scene.

They are nine-month-old European ornamental royal mute swans, already weighing 22 pounds each. Life span is 50 years and adult weight a plump 50 pounds.

For their own amusement and obscure reasons they roll onto their sides, rest a leg on their chests, and navigate like torpedoes.

But death can lurk beneath their haughty, harmless looks. "They are hard to mate, and sometimes the male will kill the female," said owner Mrs. Paul Chapman of Lakes Road.

The pair reigns supreme on their new pool-home, belching water as they eat, rolling onto their sides and tottering on spindly legs over tiny "Parsa" Island.

They arrived Tuesday and are given the right-of-way by a pair of mandarin ducks, arrivals last month, which share the pool. Outside the house 12 peacocks roam the Chapman farm.

"I have ordered a set of wood ducks and then my collecting will be complete," said Mrs. Chapman.

Bakery Driver Jailed For Theft of $762

DUNCAN — A Ladysmith bakery driver was sentenced to a year in jail here yesterday after he pleaded guilty to theft of $762 from his employer.

John Jacob Kasper, 25, was told by Magistrate A. C. Sutton that in withholding the bakery company's money from sales of their products he had violated "a position of trust."

Kasper's counsel, E. P. Robinson, said restitution of $762 had already been made.

Kasper was charged with having obtained products from City Bakeries Ltd. between Dec. 17 and Dec. 30, 1960, and failing to remit the firm's share of the proceeds.

Must Repay $8,111 Embezzled

Postmaster Sent to Jail

COURTENAY — A sentence of 12 months for embezzling $8,111 in public funds was handed a former Alert Bay postmaster yesterday in police court here.

Charles Herbert Leslie, 35, was ordered to compensate the post office department for the total amount. An accumulation of $1,772 in superannuation contributions made by Leslie may be used as a credit toward repayment, said crown prosecutor T. G. Ryan.

The slightly-built, bespectacled father of three also was sentenced one month currently on each of seven other charges of falsifying reports to the post office department. The false certificates were used to cover up diversion of the money over a period of four months in 1959 and 1960.

Leslie entered a plea of guilty when he first appeared in court last week. Earlier he had readily admitted his crime when post office investigators uncovered the shortage.

Magistrate John Ryland said he was taking this into consideration in passing sentence, but that as a public servant Leslie had grossly betrayed a position of trust.

Magistrate Ryland said he would recommend accused be sent to Haney Correctional Institute.

Salt Spring Start Point For Georgia Gulf Race

GANGES—Scott Point Marina, Salt Spring Island, will be the starting point for the 1961 Gulf of Georgia predicted log race for power boats.

The race will be held on Sunday, April 9, from Scott Point Marina north to Southey Point, past the southeast point of Tree Island, through Dadds Narrows, then out around the end of Gabriola Island through the pass at Entrance Island, and across the gulf to Brockton Point, a total of 57 miles.

Each boat calculates its own time in passing the four check points to arrive at Brockton Point at 11 a.m. The winner will be the boat that is closest to its predicted time.

The race is being held in connection with Vancouver's 75th anniversary celebrations.

Team Heads North For Fur Seal Hunt

NANAIMO—Federal fisheries department officials left here Thursday on an annual four-month Pacific coast fur seal hunt.

Scientist Dave Spaulding and technician Ted Binnerly of the department's Pacific biological station plan to shoot Canada's quota of the mammals under international treaty.

TAKE PART

They will also take part in a program to study migration, habitat and breeding habits. This year is the fourth in a six-year program of seal study.

Mr. Spaulding said in an interview "we are out to study the optimum population size in conjunction with other marine resources."

Studies will begin in the vicinity of Hecate Strait and Queen Charlotte Sound between the northern tip of Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlotte Islands. Collection of the seals and study of their habits takes place from the mouth of the Columbia River in the south to Alaska in the north.

RESEARCH PROGRAM At present Gordon Pike, in charge of the marine mammal division here, is in Tokyo at a convention on seal conservation. The convention is part of a research program by the International North Pacific Fur Seal Commission.

Canada, the United States, Japan and Russia are member countries.

Agreement has been reached between the members setting quotas. Canada's quota is between 500 and 750, the United States between 1,500 and 1,750.

Russia between 750 and 1,250 and Japan between 2,500 and 3,500.

All Canada's killing is carried out by the fisheries department. The mammals are shot and skinned, then the carcasses are used for study.

Get About $250

Sneaky Thieves Rifle Duncan Motel Suites

DUNCAN—Thieves crept stealthily through four suites in two motels here early yesterday and emptied five wallets and a purse to get about $250.

They narrowly missed being caught when salesman R. F. Smith, of Vancouver, heard a noise and got up to see if someone was breaking into his car.

LOOKED DOWN

He left the room and looked down on his car from a first-floor veranda of the Silver Bridge Inn, then went back to bed after seeing nothing amiss. In the morning it was discovered that his wallet was missing and that his wife's purse had been emptied of small bills.

Mr. Smith's wallet was found with those of three Vancouver bank inspectors who had occupied adjoining rooms.

Inspector V. E. Froese said his door had been locked, but fellow workers Norm Cromie and Keth Gillis had not latched theirs.

The thief that entered the fourth suite, in the Thunderbird Motel a quarter of a mile north, added insult to thievery.

A wallet was taken from the pants pocket of George Manion, in the room occupied by he and his brother and the thief took the pants too—just long enough to tie the legs in knots before throwing them back.

The brothers said they are not sure whether the door was locked or not. About $140 was taken from the wallet.

Rural Group Refused Full School Budget

NANAIMO — Rural representatives in the Nanaimo school district may have a little difficulty following the annual financial discussion with the school board next month.

Trustees have decided not to give them complete copies of the board's annual budget.

Board chairman Marion Ricker termed distribution of the full budget among rural representatives "an outmoded practice," but ran into strong opposition from Trustee W. L. Manion.

"It is ignorance on our part not to give it to them," he said.

"I take exception to your word 'ignorance,'" returned the chairman.

She said there are scores of items in the budget which could not be changed anyway and that she feels such items as the salaries of the secretary-treasurer and the school superintendent should not be supplied to rural representatives or city council in written form.

Sea Cadets Plan Rally

DUNCAN—Most of Vancouver Island's Sea Cadets will depend on Duncan next month for an inaugural proficiency competition designed to test their nautical skills.

The competition, believed to be the first of its kind ever held on the Island, is designed to maintain cadet interest during the winter season, said Lieut. R. M. Stewart, officer commanding Admiral Malguy RCSCC.

City council has given permission for use of the city parking lot by cadets, but tabled a request from the group for a trophy.

An organizational meeting of all commanding officers of the eight island corps, representing about 400 cadets, will be held here at 2 p.m. Sunday.

PORT ALBERT—Two members of city council and five other persons active in community affairs have been named to Port Alberni recreation commission.

Aldermen Doug Mallory and Earle Bowen, who instigated council action to set up the commission, were appointed to serve on it.

Ald. Mallory is chairman of the city's parks and recreation committee, and is a member of the local Kinmen Club. Ald. Bowen, a teacher at ADHS, is a member of Ald. Mallory's committee, president of A.V. Lions Club, and chairman of Alberni Valley Overture Concert Association.

Others whose appointments were ratified by council are J. K. A. Mazur, director of adult education for School District 70; John Stewart, Tom Keen, Tom Rooney and Mrs. O'Neil Ralston.

Mr. Stewart has been active for many years in the Boy Scout movement and has been connected with softball and swimming groups in the city. Mr. Keen, who has organized pee-wee, juvenile and junior baseball here, is "Mr. Baseball" to hundreds of Valley youngsters.

Mrs. Raikes, who has lived in the city for 26 years, has interests ranging from the concert association to badminton, tennis and the Canadian Club. Mr. Rooney, a teacher on the staff of Gill School, is active in athletic activities and in the Alberni Valley Masque Players.

Mrs. Raikes and the two aldermen will serve one-year terms. Other members have been appointed for two years.

NANAIMO—Nanaimo school board won't have anything to do with Empire Day celebrations here this year.

Mayor Maffeo and many service clubs which are trying to revive the holiday's festive aspects pleaded with the school district for some assistance, since the emphasis this year is to be on children.

The answer was a firm "no." Trustee Marion Ricker said "it has been found to put too much pressure on school principals."

Trustee Walde Manton said "it takes up too much of the schools' time. Only a few students benefit."

Trustee Day said teachers don't want the extra work involved.

The Empire Day committee had asked the schools to pick a May queen.

COURTENAY—Conviction of criminal negligence causing bodily harm brought a $100 fine for a 17-year-old youth in police court here yesterday.

George Patrick Zaleschuk was also sentenced to the four days he had spent in custody since his conviction.

A bottle thrown from a car on Courtenay's main street severely cut a young girl pedestrian and brought about the charge. The youth said he was not guilty and could remember nothing of the incident because of heavy drinking.

"Perhaps you are aware now of the folly of getting drunk and it will be a lesson to all your companions," Magistrate John Ryland said.

NANAIMO—Nanaimo's postmaster Mike Gordi was one of 12 senior B.C. postal officials who attended a two-day conference on mail handling at Vancouver.

Mail handling procedures, Christmas operations, personnel management, relations with the public, delivery services, and new developments of the postal service were reviewed.

Reconstruction Forges Ahead

Burned-Out Father Grateful for Aid

Breadwinner of a family of 10 whose home on the West Saanich Indian Reserve was gutted by fire recently, last night asked for a chance to thank Greater Victoria residents who came to his family's assistance.

Sammy Sam, 35, a part-time truck driver, said "I'd like to thank all the people for their generosity. We've been so wonderful. We've got everything we need now."

Mr. Sam's family is staying with relatives on the reserve until the Indian band and Indian agency decide whether their home at 1278 Stelly's Cross Road can be repaired.

The family received food, furniture, clothing and money from many persons who read of their plight in the Colonist and helped put them "back on their feet."

B.C. Plans Reserve Renfrew to Bamfield

Provincial government plans to place a reserve on the shore from Port Renfrew to Bamfield on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Bruce Scott, a former resident of the area, made this statement to members of the Victoria Natural History Society this week. He said he had spoken with Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

"There is everything there," he said, "a variety of ocean beaches, rivers, meadows, timbered land, sheltered inlets and magnificent scenery."

Liquor Stores Cold, Dreary

B.C. liquor stores are dreary and impersonal places, Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie) told the legislature yesterday.

"The most frequent word we hear in the liquor stores is 'next,'" Mr. Gargrave observed.

"We need specialty shops where customers can go in and discuss the qualities of liquors, such as the various wines," he said.

He charged that the impersonal attitude in liquor stores leads to intemperance. "There is a lot of parliamentary talk about liquor," he said.

Guarding Her Two Cubs

Mama Bear Grabs Logger

By CHARLES THOMPSON
DUNCAN—The tale of the three bears took on new meaning for a local logger who was almost dragged into a hollow tree by a 400-pound mother bear guarding her two cubs.

Power saw operator Leonard Arnold was preparing an undercut before falling a large, hollow, cedar tree when the mother bear stuck her angry snout out of a hole and grabbed the toe of his boot.

"If the toe-cap hadn't been of steel that bear would have pulled me right in there with her," he said. "You can see the teeth marks in the toe."

After Arnold wrenched his foot away he left the still running power saw across the hole to prevent the she-bear and her two cubs from coming out.

"It didn't try to raise the saw, but tried to dig under, and then I saw those long claws—it was quite a feeling," Arnold said his escape was hampered by the fact that beneath him was a 20-foot sheer drop down the face of a cliff.

"I got there by coming down the rocks and I sure went up them fast when the teeth slipped off," he said.

The bears were later shot in their doomed shelter. He said a logger-friend had his foot badly clawed one time in a similar incident and that another had some anxious minutes when he accidentally sawed through a bear while cutting into a tree.

Red Ship Due Soon To Pick Up Wheat

Russian freighter Sa. Monovorosnik is due to arrive Feb. 25 to pick up the first Victoria shipment of wheat for Russia under an agreement recently signed by the wheat board.

The freighter will take a full cargo of 10,000 long tons. King Bros. Ltd. will be agent for the ship.

BCE Employees:

Nationalize Bus Service!

"Nationalization" of the BCE bus service was recommended last night by some 180 Victoria employees of the transit system.

"If the BCE is to be allowed to get out of the transit business we believe the provincial government and the civic governments in the areas affected should take over the transit system," they said.

The statement was issued under the name of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, Local 109, and signed by president D. S. Dickinson.

"Our union sees no advantage to transit riders, downtown business interests or to transit employees in the sale of the transport system by one private employer to another," Mr. Dickinson said.

The BCE is at present carrying out a survey, following an offer to buy the service by

Chant Report

Gag Denied By Peterson

But No Comment Just the Same

MOST REV. H. H. CLARK
... long, hard

The education department yesterday denied it had forbidden school superintendents to comment publicly on the Chant report.

But Greater Victoria superintendent John Gough declined to comment.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Irene Byers, president of the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council, called for more comment on the report from education experts.

NOT TO SPEAK

B. C. Gillie, S. J. Willis Junior High School principal, claimed Wednesday night in a talk to the Provincial Council of Women, that superintendents, employees of the department, had been told not to speak out about the royal commission report.

This, he said, would effectively stifle the most informed source of public information on education.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson yesterday denied there had been any directive from his department to that effect. He said the only restriction had been to direct superintendents to keep a departmental record of the report confidential when it was sent to them a few days before the report was made public.

STIMULATE DISCUSSION

He said the whole objective had been to release the report as early as possible to stimulate free discussion.

"We have encouraged discussion," he said. "People from our own department have been discussing the report at various meetings."

"There is not even an element of truth in the statement," Mr. Peterson said that if any politics were being played in making such a statement, they are not being played at this end but perhaps by the people who made the statement.

DENIAL REPEATED

The education minister later repeated his denial in the legislature after Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie) read selections from the Colonist report of the meeting where Mr. Gillie spoke.

Mrs. Byers said the Chant report "should be talked about a lot."

"I don't think there's any harm in school superintendents speaking up about it. The more we hear from experts, the more we understand, and they're the ones we want to hear," she said.

Mr. Gillie, elaborating last night on his earlier statements, said a number of district superintendents in various parts of the province have said they are not at liberty to discuss the Chant report because there is a suggestion it has "political significance."

Today In House

Minister Kenneth Kierman (BC—Chilliwack) will lead off debate in today's sitting of the legislature at 2 p.m. Other speakers will be George Hobbs (CCF—Revelstoke), John Tindale (BC—Nanaimo) and Mrs. Lois Huggan (CCF—Grand Forks-Greenwood).

Victorians Returned To Hospital Board

J. Courtney Haddock and Ian Horne were reappointed yesterday to represent the provincial government on the board of directors of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

COURTENAY—Two hours of intensive police investigation broke in here Wednesday night.

Civilian patrolman John Haddon headed off a suspect en route to Vancouver following a 17-year-old youth was taken in custody in Nanaimo, 60 miles away.

About $50 in cash is reported missing from Lintott Motors in the break-in.

Church Union 'Not Practical'

Union of Protestant and Roman Catholic churches is "not a practical possibility" at the present time, the primate of the Church of England in Canada said here yesterday.

Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Archbishop of Edmonton, visiting Victoria for several days, said he believes unity is "God's will" but it may be a "long and difficult process, the end of which we do not clearly see."

Circumstances outside the natural resistance of many church members who fear loss of freedom, spontaneity and variety, may force churches to unite, he said.

"We are living in a time not only of growth of communism but also a revival of the great religions of the East."

Islam and Buddhism especially. The situation facing the Christian church at the present is that lukewarm Christians are attempting to compete with dedicated Communists and Moslems. And in matters of faith or science the lukewarm man always loses out," said Archbishop Clark.

"I believe anyone who is optimistic about the immediate future for Christianity is blind to the facts. We're in for a time of trouble and as Churchill said, 'Personally, I find that rather inspiring.'"

He sees hope for Christianity in the present generation of young men "more serious than my generation was. Only a few of them are dedicated Christians, but they are all searching and this searching, I believe, is the hope of the future."

Legislature Won't Hear 'Hallelujah Chorus'

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

AM! MEN!: Social Credit backbenchers may not be referred to as the "Hallelujah Chorus" any more... at least not in the legislative assembly.

That was the ruling of Mr. Speaker Hugh MacIsaac yesterday following fairly wide spread use of the term to signify the fact that backbenchers were forever praising the actions of the cabinet.

"This term 'Hallelujah Chorus' I don't believe is in good taste and I would ask that members refrain from using it further," said Mr. Shantz.

POTTED PALMS: A scribbled note and a photograph from mortgage man Eric Charman tells of the joys of banking in Hawaii's sizzling sunshine.

WIDE FIELD: Say one thing for Premier Bennett, he's always optimistic.

He took time off from provincial politics yesterday to give us his considered opinion on two on the upcoming election in the federal riding of Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Why those Tories," said the laughing ex-Tory. "They have more people trying to get that nomination than they'll have in total votes."

He was reminded that last election the Tories had a 14,000-vote edge and that Social Credit placed fourth out of four.

"Aha, my friend," said the premier, wagging a finger. "But who could forget Ottawa's callous attitude towards the good people of Vancouver Island during the CPR strike?"

Simply callous. Why our little government had to step in to provide a good ferry service for the people.

"And that man who came here from Ottawa, didn't he make a mess of things," he said chuckling. "He's way out on a limb... of course, my friend, their whole party is out on a limb."

And off he went with a jaunty, happy stride.

CUT DOWN: Firing of 12 newsmen from the Vancouver Province on Tuesday has been labelled in newspaper circles as "The St. Valentine's Day Massacre."

OUT OF PROPORTION: There's one CCFer who prefers B.C. to the CCF governed province of Saskatchewan.

Tony Gargrave (CCF—Mackenzie) mentioned the province, as do a lot of his colleagues, to press home a point.

"Are you going to Saskatchewan?" asked Premier Bennett.

"No, I like B.C. better," said Mr. Gargrave as the premier preened his feathers. "I was in Regina once and with a climate like that they have to have a good government."

But the biggest laugh was still to come.

"It seems that in B.C.," added Mr. Gargrave, "things are in an inverse ratio."

Paper-Wrapped 'Bomb' Sent to Gaglardi's Office

A paper-wrapped nuisance bomb was sent to the office of Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Monday and was opened by his secretary.

A crude, home-made timing device was attached to a large flashbulb but there were no explosives.

The package was opened by Miss Edith M.

Scarff and the wires became detached. Nothing happened.

Although the minister looked upon the incident as a prank fellow cabinet ministers took the matter more seriously. One said that a sudden brilliant burst of light at close quarters could have caused a heart attack or collapse. RCMP are investigating.

Iron Millions For Island

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Noranda Mines Ltd., one of Canada's largest mining corporations, announced yesterday it will spend some $5,000,000 on development and operation of its new iron ore property on the west coast of Vancouver Island, near Maggie Lake.

During the initial development period it is estimated Noranda will find work for up to 700 persons in various construction jobs, and for the seven-year period in which it is expected the mine will be in production there will be steady jobs for about 150 men.

BIG DEPOSITS

Maggie Lake is some 20 miles east of Ucluelet and south of the Port Alberni-Tofino Highway. Noranda bought the claims from B.C. prospectors about a year ago, and exploration work has indicated over 9,000,000 tons of magnetite iron ore.

Noranda reported yesterday that it has signed an agreement with Japanese smelters to ship 5,000,000 tons of 61 per cent iron concentrate over the next seven years.

BIGGEST YET

This is the largest contract yet made to ship Vancouver Island ore to Japan. First shipments will be made early next year.

Noranda proposes to use

open-pit methods at Maggie Lake and to install crushing, grinding and magnetic concentrating equipment at the property.

It will also build a seven-mile road to tidewater at Toquart Bay, an arm of Barclay Sound, where deep-sea docks and loading facilities will be constructed.

Crane Topples, Kills Six

ROSVELL, N.M. (AP)—An unattended 35-ton crane toppled into an underground missile silo and exploded Thursday. At least six workmen were killed and 14 injured. Two of the injured were not expected to survive.

The silo—a 172-foot-deep pit on the southeastern New Mexico plains—was to house one of the 12 Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles which will be scattered around the city.

Men working on the concrete sides of the silo were brushed from the walls like flies when the huge steel crane took its plunge.

The crane exploded when it hit bottom, spewing flaming fuel over the men.

The crane was 15 feet high and carried a 75-foot boom.

LONDON (UPI)—A British space scientist said yesterday the Russians have taken the first step toward orbiting giant reflectors capable of concentrating the sun's cosmic rays on an earthly target and burning man and matter to a crisp.

CAR KILLS PEDESTRIAN

Police Seek Identity

With a battered, rain-soaked black felt hat as their only clue, Oak Bay police late last night went from door to door along Beach Drive, seeking the identity of an elderly woman, killed by a car at 9.30 p.m. near Beach and Currie.

A passing motorist rushed the dying woman to Royal Jubilee Hospital where she was immediately pronounced dead.

Only a set of keys was found in a pocket of her dark coat. Police found the crushed felt hat on the road, way at the scene of the accident, along with a brown leather shoe.

The victim was struck down near the Oak Bay Boathouse

Blazes Kill 524 in Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian fire losses totalled $127,353,777 in 1960, Works Minister Walker said yesterday.

Preliminary figures from the covering all categories except forest fires show 82,498 blazes during the year, resulting in 524 deaths.

DOOR TO DOOR
Baffled police checked at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel and then went from door to door in the area, waking residents and asking them if they could identify the black felt hat.

Lack of a pocketbook or purse led police to believe the woman lived nearby.

The women offered no clue to the woman's identity up to midnight.

"This is bad," one Oak Bay policeman said. "Seven years without a fatality and now two in two years." (A man died Aug. 30, 1960 after being struck at Oak Bay Avenue and Elgin.)

Packer Crew Plucked From Seas

VANCOUVER (CP)—Seven men Thursday night were plucked from the frigid waters off northern Vancouver Island when the 76-foot fishpacker White Swan was swamped in heavy seas and sank.

The men were rescued by a second fishpacker, the St. Nicholas. Both vessels, owned by ABC Packing Co. of Vancouver, were headed here from Namu, loaded with 80 tons of herring. Namu is 275 miles north of here.

Provincial Car Insurance Urged to Offset Gas Tax

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The provincial government should consider a form of cheap state automobile insurance to save motorists money and ease the blow of the planned three-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax, Sacred party whip Bert Price (Vancouver-Burrard) told the legislature yesterday.

In a speech that filled the opposition with glee, Mr. Price also:

● Asked that the government set up a special petroleum board to investigate cost of producing a gallon of gasoline with a view to establishing a fair and reasonable profit and yet absorb the proposed gasoline tax increase in existing costs.

● Called for a capital gains tax on real estate.

● Called for a turnover tax on property.

● Asked the government to go into the life insurance business by expanding its superannuation plan to new agencies, such as unions.

● Said relief is no answer to unemployment and the only answer is to get people back to work through expansion.

● Told the provincial agriculture department and the B.C. Growers' Association to do a better job of selling and pricing, because some housewives can only afford to give their children half an apple at a time, and have to buy foreign canned apples to make apple pies.

● Urged the B.C. government to set up a program for licensing doctors, because although the doctors association claims doctors are overworked, doctors from other provinces are being hindered from coming to B.C. to set up practices.

● Called for a complete B.C. medical care program "on some basis by which nobody would be faced with a cost beyond which they can afford."

● Called upon B.C.'s commercial transport department to negotiate reciprocal licensing agreements with neighboring states and provinces, because "inter-provincial and international truckers will be forced out of the province, unless something is done," about high cost of trucking.

● Suggested that as an unemployment relief measure the federal government should

John D Appeals To Africa, Asia

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said yesterday the principal support for the United Nations in the crisis brought on by Russia's attack on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold must come from the states of Africa and Asia.

He appealed to the "overwhelming majority of members" of the UN to rally behind the secretary-general at "this very critical time."

At the same time the prime minister called in the Commons for a strengthened mandate for Mr. Hammarskjold in the Congo to allow the UN to protect civilians there, bring about a cease-fire in the civil war and reorganize the Congolese security forces.

SELFISH AIMS

The Soviets have appeared to be following "selfish aims in Central Africa," said Mr. Diefenbaker, and in pursuit of those aims have tried to paralyze the UN operation in the Congo. A "supreme effort" was needed to prevent further deterioration of the situation.

WINNIPEG (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said Thursday that Canada will not compromise "to please the Russians" over the present crisis in the United Nations.

NO QUALIFICATIONS
He said in an interview: "There are no qualifications to Canada's support of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold."

"The Russian leaders are just as stupid as we are. They make a lot of mistakes like the West does. And in this case I do not give them credit for thinking out this problem on a long-term basis."

DIFFERENT WAY

Of Russian actions at the United Nations, Mr. Green said:

"These birds do business in a different way to us. Their propaganda line may go one way and their real policy another way."

Executive's Rise Depends on Wife

VANCOUVER (CP)—An oil company executive told a group of UBC students Thursday that wives are an asset in the business world.

"In the career of practically every successful man I know, his wife has been a tremendous help," said W. M. V. Ash, president of Shell Oil Co. of Canada Ltd.

"When we pick a man for a leading position, his wife is a very important person."

"She can help him tremendously and it's also quite conceivable that she can prevent him from getting the job."

Lotteries Reviewed

OTTAWA (CP)—The whole question of lotteries is under consideration by his department, Justice Minister Fulton said Thursday.

He was commenting on a survey by Montreal La Presse, which revealed overwhelming support for lotteries. (See Page 52).
